HUNDREDS ARE HOMELESS AFTER EARTH SHOCKS

SEISMIC WAVE YESTERDAY HIT ISLAND ON ITS EASTERN SIDE

LEFT A TRAIL OF DEMOLISHED HOUSES AND CRACKED ROADS IN ITS PATH

Three years ago today occurred one of the greatest earthquake disasters of all history. An earthquake shock, followed by a tidal wave and by fire virtually destroyed Tokio, capital of Japan, which is the third largest city in the world, Yokohama, the chief Japanese port and many other towns and resorts.

The total number of casualties was 246,540, according to unofficial statistics, of whom 103,733 were wounded, 99,331 killed and 43,476 missing. The missing presumably were all killed.

Nearly 500,000 houses were destroyed by fire, 128,000 collapsed and 868 were washed away by the tidal wave. The property loss went into the billions of dollars.

Copyright, 1926, by United Press) Horta, Azores Islands, Sept. 1.—Twelve persons were killed, approximately 100 were injured and hundreds are homeless after an earthquake which spread ruin here.

Order has been restored and by yesterday evening a temporary lighting service was started to provide light for the two small parks where large numbers were gathered. Beyond the parks Horta appeared to be a city of the dead, with troops and firemen patrolling the streets between ruined houses.

The earth shock came at 9 A. M. yesterday.

Confusion swept the city as the quake came. Thousands ran aimlessly through the streets. Automobiles dashed at a furious pace. Clouds of dust rose from the fallen houses, obscuring the scene.

The injured were taken to hospitals, some in automobiles and some on the arms of relatives.

The authorities, aided by troops and firemen, at once took command of the situation, commandeering automobiles to transport the injured and working all day and into the night to restore order.

The island of Fayal, with its town of Horta, capital of one of the Azorean districts, is about 30 miles in circumference. In addition to the town there are several outlying villages, the total population of the island being about 20,000. It is situated in a seismic zone, as are the other islands of the group with the exception of Flores and Corvo. At one time the volcanoes were active and much damage was done here by outbursts.

It seemed that the seismic wave coming from the southwest yesterday struck the island on its eastern side and ran along in a northerly direction through the channel which separates Fayal from the island of Pico. Taking the neighborhood of Petelra as a starting point, the wave left a trail of demolished houses and cracked roads as it made its way along the eastern seaboard toward Lombado Pilar.

The port was not affected, shipping firms carrying on business as usual.

10 KILLED AT LISBON QUAKE

Lisbon, Sept. 1.—Thus far 10 persons were known to have been killed and about 250 severely injured in the earthquake, which rocked Horta in the Azores group yesterday.

The population still was panic-stricken today and feared a repetition of the quake, according to a dispatch from Horta. Some families were without food and many had no shelter. The exact number of houses ruined by the quake had not been determined today, but dispatches said that the churches and many of the larger buildings had been badly damaged.

A communique signed by the minister of the interior said that 4,000 houses had been destroyed and that many families were without food. The damage was likely to amount to "millions of dollars."

"The earthquake was felt throughout the island of Fayal and with special violence in Horta," according to the communique.

The population fled from their

SEN. MCKINLEY SERIOUSLY ILL AT SANITARIUM

ILLINOIS SOLON IS SUFFERING FROM CONGESTION OF THE LUNGS

PHYSICIANS IN ATTENDANCE SAY THE END IS NOT FAR AWAY

Martinsville, Ind., Sept. 1.—(UP)—United States Senator William B. McKinley of Illinois is in a dangerous condition at a sanitarium here, it was learned today. The senator, who has been confined to his bed for a week, is suffering from congestion of the lungs.

Although his physicians said at midnight that the end was not far away, the veteran Illinois legislator was still struggling for life this morning. He was unconscious but was expected to survive at least for several hours. Three nurses are in attendance and a group of relatives are at the bedside.

Senator McKinley became ill with neuritis and rheumatism soon after the Illinois primaries this spring. He was taken to the sanitarium here two weeks ago, but developed congestion of the lungs during the last few days.

The congestion has gradually become worse.

SEARCH FREIGHT WRECK FOR MORE VICTIMS

3 KNOWN TO HAVE LOST LIVES TUESDAY NEAR ABERDEEN, S. D.

17 CARS OF WHEAT AND LUMBER PILED UP IN THE DITCH

Aberdeen, S. D., Sept. 1.—(UP)—Rescue workers are searching in the wreckage of a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad freight train for additional victims of the derailment in which three persons are known to have lost their lives Tuesday.

Seventeen cars of wheat and lumber are piled up alongside the track as a result of the derailment of the train near Beebe.

All the dead are believed to have been hoboed. One victim, before he died, said he was John Miller of San Francisco. Another is either John Sevedge of Gary, Ind., or Joseph Goss of Kokomo, Ind., according to marks of identification found on him. The third has not been identified.

homes. Precautions against disease, especially tetanus, had been taken by the local government.

The Portuguese government today was sending a cruiser bearing physicians, Red Cross units, engineers, medicines and food to the Azores. The government last night announced that almost the entire city of Horta had been destroyed.

Horta, Fayal, Azores Islands, Sept. 1.—Horta was rocked by renewed earthquakes today as relief workers searched the ruins for more victims of Tuesday's quake in which 11 or 12 persons were killed and 200 or so injured.

Today's tremors were mild.

The population was convulsed with panic at the renewal of seismic disturbance after a terrible night during which homeless hundreds had huddled together in the parks, expecting every moment to bring a repetition of the quake. So far (this dispatch left Horta at noon today) no Americans had been reported injured, but there was much distress here. Supplies were urgently needed.

Briand Says League of Nations Is Surest Guarantee of Peace in World

DEMONSTRATED ITS VALUE IN ALL OF EUROPE

DECLARES DEFENSE OF LEAGUE IS DEFENSE OF PEACE ITSELF

FINDS IN RESULTS GAINED REASONS FOR CONFIDENCE AND FAITH

Aristide Briand, many times premier of France, famous as the "Man of Locarno" and a champion of the League of Nations, on the eve of his departure to Geneva, has written the following statement for the United Press.

Briand wrote in response to a query regarding his attitude toward the reports of various efforts to sabotage the League. Such a formal declaration while holding office is believed to be without precedent for Briand.

By ARISTIDE BRIAND (French foreign minister and delegate to the League of Nations) (Written for the United Press) (Copyright, 1926, by United Press)

Paris, Sept. 1.—The League of Nations constitutes at the present moment the surest guarantee of peace in the world.

It has already demonstrated its value as an instrument of peace in Europe. It is sufficient to recall the efficacy of its intervention in one of the gravest cases when it brought about the peaceful settlement of a conflict between nations which might have caused a rupture of the European equilibrium.

Everybody sincerely attached to the work for peace and convinced of the necessity of a common effort for the safeguard of an identical civilization and an identical ideal of humanity owe it to themselves to demonstrate very clearly their solidarity and service to this task by defending at any cost the future of the league and by sacrificing to it, if need be, their momentary preoccupations of self esteem and self interest.

As for me, I declare emphatically that the defense of the League is the defense of peace itself. I have firmly decided to place at its service the best of my intelligence and of my strength. I look on the road we have traveled and find in the results acquired reasons for confidence and faith. I am leaving Paris more than ever filled with the sentiments which always have guided me on the way to Geneva. I do not hide from myself the difference of the obstacles which remain to be surmounted in order to complete and vivify the work begun at Locarno.

I know that certain criticism will not be lacking. I am well aware that peace cannot be made a reality without unpleasant experiences. But the object to be attained is well worth the trouble. And I see that a great majority of the peoples of the world look with sympathy toward the League. They are guided by their own interests. I know how far I can count on the aid of the most tried and true members of the league.

Their loyalty and their courage are the best guarantee of victory at a time when for the defense of an identical cause all must show sincerity, good will and disinterest.

Geneva, Sept. 1.—The League of Nations commission for reorganization of the League council today adopted the French-German-English project for ending the dispute over council memberships by increasing the number of non-permanent councilors to nine, with three of these to be nominated for a special category of semi-permanent tenure. The action was by unanimous vote with Spain abstaining.

QUARREL OVER MONEY, HUSBAND KILLS WIFE AND SELF

St. Paul, Sept. 1.—(UP)—A quarrel over financial affairs preceded the murder and suicide in which Peter St. Martin, 72, a retired farmer, shot and killed his wife, Emily St. Martin, 58, and then killed himself Tuesday. The bodies were found by two grandchildren, Lorraine Knyphausen, 10, and Roland Knyphausen, 5, who live next door. Husband and wife had been married previously, police said.

"THRILL SLAYERS" ARE ELIGIBLE TO PAROLE IN 1935

NATHAN LEOPOLD, JR., AND RICHARD LOEB YEARN FOR FREEDOM

STATE SUPERVISOR OF PAROLE WARNS STATE'S ATTORNEY OF ILLINOIS

Chicago, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Nathan Leopold, Jr., and Richard Loeb, "thrill slayers," of young Robert Franks, will be eligible to parole from Joliet prison in 1935, Hinton G. Clabaugh, state supervisor of paroles, has warned State's Attorney Robert E. Crowe.

The loop hole for the possible release of the youths lies in the fact that their sentences run concurrently under the statutes, Clabaugh declared in a letter to the state's attorney. Loeb and Leopold were sentenced by Judge John R. Caverly in September, to serve 99 years for kidnapping young Franks and were given life sentences for his murder.

"The law specified that where one sentence is longer than the other, the longer one must be served first," Clabaugh said. "Accepting the life sentence, good behavior under the Illinois merit system would cut the term to a minimum of 11 years."

"If the 99 year sentence was taken, as the longer they would be eligible for parole at the end of 30 years."

Crowe said that any direct move to free the pair during his term in office would be vigorously opposed.

"They are two of the most vicious criminals I have ever prosecuted and I will do all in my power to see that they remain in prison," he said.

500 SNEEZERS MEET AT DULUTH

ANNUAL BUSINESS SESSION OF INTERSTATE HAY FEVER ASSOCIATION

Duluth, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Agreed that hay fever at last has come into its own, 500 persons gathered here today for the annual business session of the Interstate Hay Fever Association.

Officials of the organization pointed out that whereas hay fever at one time was regarded as excellent material for humorists, because of the belief that it existed only in the imagination of those who had it, the malady now is recognized as a legitimate affliction and science is bending itself to efforts to relieve it.

Fred Sears of Duluth, president of the association, has announced that pressure of business will prevent his being a candidate for re-election and friends of Edward J. Thorne, Missouri banker, are urging his election. With Homer Fulton of Duluth, an attorney, the chief speaker, the organization's annual banquet will be held Thursday evening.

TWO NEBRASKA FARMERS ON LIGHT RATIONS

BREAD AND WATER DIET FOR VIOLATING PROHIBITION LAW

TAKE LAST LUXURIOUS MEAL OF HAM AND EGGS AT THEIR HOMES

Tekamah, Neb., Sept. 1.—(UP)—Today is a feast day at the homes of Ray Carson and Thomas Nelson, young farmers, who must serve a jail sentence on a bread and water diet for having violated the prohibition law.

Ham and eggs in bounteous fashion was the breakfast menu for both homes. There was a breakfast food and plenty of coffee. The bread was buttered.

Carson at noon will have chicken, corn on the cob, potatoes and dessert.

Nelson will have a large and thick steak and the usual vegetables which go to make up a meal. Pies feature the menu at Nelson's home. This may be the last time in 20 days that the two will have a chance to eat anything more than unadorned bread and cool, sparkling water. The supreme court mandate ordering them to start serving their sentence is expected to arrive tomorrow and the two will both go to jail at that time.

"We're going to fill up today," Nelson said. "A farmer does not build up much of a waist line and we will probably need a reserve when we get to munching nothing but bread."

The two young farmers, who were convicted of selling liquor at a country dance, said also they were willing to accept any dinner invitation that might be extended during the day.

"They won't starve in jail," Sheriff W. D. Smith said today. "I will see that there is a plentiful supply of bread on hand at all times and they can have all the water they want to drink."

"Then when their first 20 days is over they will go on regular prison fare, which Mrs. Smith prepares. They will get plenty of food during that period."

When Judge Chatt sentenced the two to 60 days in jail and 40 days of it on bread and water diet sentence, it was not his first sentence of that nature. Several liquor law violators have had similar sentences and one, Max Saltzman, is now in the county jail here on his sixth day of a bread and water diet.

The sentence provides the two will serve 20 days on the bread and water diet, 20 days on regular prison fare, then the remaining 20 days on bread and water diet again.

AGED FARMER SUBDUED BY BANDIT THREATS

Fond du Lac, Wis., Sept. 1.—(UP)—Subdued by threats of death if he had tried to battle a youthful bandit to protect his savings, John Vielbig, 63, a farmer, living near here, fled from his home.

After he fled the robber and his accomplice rifled the Vielbig home of $3,000 in cash, a valuable pearl and diamond necklace and other articles of jewelry. Mrs. Vielbig, who fled to seek aid when she saw her husband battling the bandit, was found three hours later in a field near the home. Physicians fear she may die from shock and exposure.

A posse which searched all night had been unable to locate the bandits.

GOVERNMENT'S EXHIBITS ARE FADING AWAY

DISBARMENT TRIAL OF ABE HERTZ, ST. PAUL ATTORNEY, UNDER WAY

GOVERNMENT DOCUMENTS MISSING IN LIQUOR CONSPIRACY CASE OF GLECKMAN

St. Paul, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Disappearance of the government's exhibits and documents in the liquor conspiracy trial of Leon Gleckman and others was announced before a state supreme court referee during the disbarment trial of Abe Hertz, of St. Paul, an attorney.

Chell M. Smith, deputy clerk of the United States district court, testified that the documents, which concerned alcoholic shipments and division of profits, were not in his records.

Disbarment proceedings against Hertz were based on his alleged conduct in the defense of Gleckman and the others.

Gleckman and some of the other defendants pleaded guilty, but it was testified at the disbarment proceedings that Hertz took no part in the conferences with prosecuting officials, which resulted in the plea.

Judge Bert Foster of Duluth, who was appointed referee by the state supreme court, is conducting the disbarment hearing against Hertz.

CLOUDBURST AT GALESBURG, ILL., DID MUCH DAMAGE

6 INCHES OF RAIN FELL WITHIN A SHORT PERIOD TODAY

PROPERTY LOSS IN GALESBURG ESTIMATED AT $500,000

Galesburg, Ill., Sept. 1.—(UP)—A near cloudburst in which six inches of rain fell within a short period, today caused damage estimated at $500,000 in Galesburg.

Down town streets were flooded, railroads reported numerous washouts and disruption of schedules, while the city lighting and water plants were seriously damaged.

The city is bisected by a small stream, Cedar Fork, and this early left its banks sending gallons of water pouring into the main part of town. Basements of many merchandise houses were flooded and damage to supplies was heavy.

Spoon river, which borders this city is reported out of its banks.

In the lowland districts many persons were forced to leave their homes.

WANTS COMPLETE TICKET IN THE FALL ELECTION

COMMITTEE OF LAWYERS NAMED BY CHAIRMAN C. A. QUIST

ALL OF ATTORNEYS ARE SYMPATHIZING DEMOCRATS, IT IS SAID

Minneapolis, Sept. 1.—(UP)—A committee of lawyers will decide whether the democratic party of Minnesota is to continue its efforts to have a complete ticket in the general fall election.

Appointment of the committee was announced today by C. A. Quist chairman of the democratic state central committee, who said he had asked the attorneys, all of whom are democrats, to give individual legal opinions regarding whether candidates selected by the party to fill gaps in its list of congressional and state office aspirants may have their names on the general election ballot as democrats.

The office of Attorney General Clifford L. Hilton in response to a request by Quist recently ruled that although candidates nominated by petition may have their names on the general election ballots, they must run not as members of any party but as independents.

However, Quist told the United Press today that it is his contention that the party has the exclusive right to the name "democrat" and that with the agreement of the party, a candidate selected after the primary may have his name on the ticket as a democrat.

The members of the committee who will give their opinions are Neil Cronin, city attorney of Minneapolis, chairman; Andrew Nelson of Duluth, Judge J. F. Meighan of Albert Lea, John M. Freeman of Olivia and R. C. Bell of Detroit.

The procedure to be followed by the committee beyond the submission of individual opinions has not been determined, Quist said. However, he indicated that provided the committee agreed with him, an appeal would be made to the attorney general's office for a reversal of its ruling.

Quist also announced receipt of a letter from James E. Markham, assistant attorney general, expressing Markham's willingness to confer with a democratic committee and reconsider the ruling.

BARCELONA-VALENCIA TRAIN WRECKED

Barcelona, Spain, Sept. 1.—(UP)—The Barcelona-Valencia train was wrecked today and, according to first reports, 20 persons were killed and 36 injured. The wreck was attributed to recent rain storms.

SEN. SMITH IS RE-NOMINATED IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 1.—(UP)—Senator E. D. Smith today beat Edgar A. Brown for the democratic nomination for the United States senate on returns from 1,267 precincts out of 1,874 in the state in yesterday's primary.

Smith did not have a majority, as is required, for nomination, however, and a run off primary seemed probable.

St. Paul, Sept. 1.—(UP)—The plant of the Griffin Wheel Company here was destroyed by a stubborn $150,000 fire Tuesday night. Two special calls were made for fire apparatus and 15 pieces of equipment fought the blaze.

500 SNEEZERS MEET AT DULUTH

ANNUAL BUSINESS SESSION OF INTERSTATE HAY FEVER ASSOCIATION

Duluth, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Agreed that hay fever at last has come into its own, 500 persons gathered here today for the annual business session of the Interstate Hay Fever Association. Officials of the organization pointed out that whereas hay fever at one time was regarded as excellent material for humorists, because of the belief that it existed only in the imagination of those who had it, the malady now is recognized as a legitimate affliction and science is bending itself to efforts to relieve it.

Fred Sears of Duluth, president of the association, has announced that pressure of business will prevent his being a candidate for re-election and friends of Edward J. Thorne, Missouri banker, are urging his election. With Homer Fulton of Duluth, an attorney, the chief speaker, the organization's annual banquet will be held Thursday evening.

TWO NEBRASKA FARMERS ON LIGHT RATIONS

BREAD AND WATER DIET FOR VIOLATING PROHIBITION LAW

TAKE LAST LUXURIOUS MEAL OF HAM AND EGGS AT THEIR HOMES

Tokamah, Neb., Sept. 1.—(UP)—Today is a feast day at the homes of Ray Carson and Thomas Nelson, young farmers, who must serve a jail sentence on a bread and water diet for having violated the prohibition law.

Ham and eggs in bounteous fashion was the breakfast menu for both homes. There was a breakfast food and plenty of coffee. The bread was buttered.

Carson at noon will have chicken, corn on the cob, potatoes and dessert.

Nelson will have a large and thick steak and the usual vegetables which go to make up a meal. Pies feature the menu at Nelson's home. This may be the last time in 20 days that the two will have a chance to eat anything more than unbuttered bread and cool, sparkling water. The supreme court mandate ordering them to start serving their sentence is expected to arrive tomorrow and the two will both go to jail at that time.

"We're going to fill up today," Nelson said. "A farmer does not build up much of a waist line and we will probably need a reserve when we get to munching nothing but bread."

The two young farmers, who were convicted of selling liquor at a country dance, said also they were willing to accept any dinner invitation that might be extended during the day.

"They won't starve in jail," Sheriff W. D. Smith said today. "I will see that there is a plentiful supply of bread on hand at all times and they can have all the water they want to drink."

"Then when their first 20 days is over they will go on regular prison fare, which Mrs. Smith prepares. They will get plenty of food during that period."

When Judge Chatt sentenced the two to 60 days in jail and 40 days of it on bread and water diet sentence, it was not his first sentence of that nature. Several liquor law violators have had similar sentences and one, Max Saltzman, is now in the county jail here on his sixth day of a bread and water diet.

The sentence provides the two will serve 20 days on the bread and water diet, 20 days on regular prison fare, then the remaining 20 days on bread and water diet again.

AGED FARMER SUBDUED BY BANDIT THREATS

Fond du Lac, Wis., Sept. 1.—(UP)—Subdued by threats of death if he had tried to battle a youthful bandit to protect his savings, John Vielbig, 63, a farmer, living near here, fled from his home.

After he fled the robber and his accomplice rifled the Vielbig home of $3,000 in cash, a valuable pearl and diamond necklace and other articles of jewelry. Mrs. Vielbig, who fled to seek aid when she saw her husband battling the bandit, was found three hours later in a field near the home. Physicians fear she may die from shock and exposure.

A posse which searched all night had been unable to locate the bandits.

GOVERNMENT'S EXHIBITS ARE FADING AWAY

DISBARMENT TRIAL OF ABE HERTZ, ST. PAUL ATTORNEY, UNDER WAY

GOVERNMENT DOCUMENTS MISSING IN LIQUOR CONSPIRACY CASE OF GLECKMAN

St. Paul, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Disappearance of the government's exhibits and documents in the liquor conspiracy trial of Leon Gleckman and others was announced before a state supreme court referee during the disbarment trial of Abe Hertz, of St. Paul, an attorney.

Chell M. Smith, deputy clerk of the United States district court, testified that the documents, which concerned alcoholic shipments and division of profits, were not in his records.

Disbarment proceedings against Hertz were based on his alleged conduct in the defense of Gleckman and the others.

Gleckman and some of the other defendants pleaded guilty, but it was testified at the disbarment proceedings that Hertz took no part in the conferences with prosecuting officials, which resulted in the plea.

Judge Bert Fesler of Duluth, who was appointed referee by the state supreme court, is conducting the disbarment hearing against Hertz.

WANTS COMPLETE TICKET IN THE FALL ELECTION

COMMITTEE OF LAWYERS NAMED BY CHAIRMAN C. A. QUIST

ALL OF ATTORNEYS ARE SYMPATHIZING DEMOCRATS, IT IS SAID

Minneapolis, Sept. 1.—(UP)—A committee of lawyers will decide whether the democratic party of Minnesota is to continue its efforts to have a complete ticket in the general fall election.

Appointment of the committee was announced today by C. A. Quist chairman of the democratic state central committee, who said he had asked the attorneys, all of whom are democrats, to give individual legal opinions regarding whether candidates selected by the party to fill gaps in its list of congressional and state office aspirants may have their names on the general election ballot as democrats.

The office of Attorney General Clifford L. Hilton in response to a request by Quist recently ruled that although candidates nominated by petition may have their names on the general election ballots, they must run not as members of any party but as independents.

However, Quist told the United Press today that it is his contention that the party has the exclusive right to the name "democrat" and that with the agreement of the party, a candidate selected after the primary may have his name on the ticket as a democrat.

The members of the committee who will give their opinions are Neil Cronin, city attorney of Minneapolis, chairman; Andrew Nelson of Duluth, Judge J. F. Meighan of Albert Lea, John M. Freeman of Olivia and R. C. Bell of Detroit.

The procedure to be followed by the committee beyond the submission of individual opinions has not been determined, Quist said. However, he indicated that provided the committee agreed with him, an appeal would be made to the attorney general's office for a reversal of its ruling.

Quist also announced receipt of a letter from James E. Markham, assistant attorney general, expressing Markham's willingness to confer with a democratic committee and reconsider the ruling.

SEN. SMITH IS RE-NOMINATED IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Columbia, S. C., Sept. 1.—(UP)—Senator E. D. Smith today beat Edgar A. Brown for the democratic nomination for the United States senate on returns from 1,267 precincts out of 1,874 in the state in yesterday's primary.

Smith did not have a majority, as is required, for nomination, however, and a run off primary seemed probable.

WORLD COURT U. S. RESERVATIONS ARE CONSIDERED

3 OF THE U. S. SENATE'S CONDITIONS TO PARTICIPATION ARE ACCEPTED

4TH RESERVATION, HOWEVER, ENCOUNTERS MANY OBSTACLES

By HENRY WOOD (United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, Sept. 1. — Three of the United States senate's reservations to participation in the world court were quickly accepted on the first reading today by the conference of 38 Hague court signatories, but obstacles were encountered when the fourth reservation came up for consideration.

It was felt here that the funeral of the senate's reservations had begun. The mere fact that only 38 of the 48 signatories to the court protocol consented to participate in the conference virtually condemned the reservations in advance since the senate stipulated that every reservation must be accepted by every signatory. League members here generally were agreed that the fifth of the senate's reservations would not be acceptable unless the United States were willing to restrict its application.

Senator Claude Swanson, Pat Harrison and T. H. Caraway, and Representatives Stephen O. Porter, Theodore E. Burton, Fred A. Britten and Andrew J. Montague were here today in unofficial capacities to watch the interment.

The principal countries not participating in today's conference were Latin American, who were understood to oppose the American reservations but who chose not to make a public stand in that position.

Professor Von Eysinga of Holland was elected president of the conference and immediately proposed that the session should be public, although it at first had appeared that they would be secret. Sir George Foster, representing Canada, warmly supported the president. Von Eysinga advocated approval of the reservations.

After two hours' discussion of the fourth United States reservation without having reached any decision the conference turned to the fifth reservation. The first half of the fifth was accepted, whereupon the conference adjourned to permit unofficial discussion of the remainder of the fifth reservation which constitutes the only real obstacle of approval.

Predicting Earthquakes

The time is not far distant when scientists will be able to predict earthquakes with the same accuracy that astronomers are now able to predict the coming of a comet. This is the opinion held by Dr. Thomas Jaggard, one of the greatest volcanologists in the world. He is in charge of the government observatory in the Hawaiian Islands and has visited all the earthquake areas during the last quarter century. Doctor Jaggard is among those scientists who believe in studying the life processes of today rather than the fossils of the past. By observing the crust of the earth and by watching the eruptions and other movements, he thinks, it will be possible to forecast earthquake cycles with a reasonable degree of precision. —Pathfinder Magazine.

"Couldn't stand any more?" echoed the proprietor of the emporium. "Was Dick in such a fix that he couldn't talk straight?"

"No, but four different cars ran up against me and branded me with their hot radiators till they just about burnt the seat out of my britches, and I concluded to go on and let Dick tell the story to somebody else."—Kansas City Star.

Building Stone Wall

Occasion for Frolic

When a farmer in the early '50s needed a stone wall on his property he did not send for a stone mason, but invited his friends and neighbors to a stone-frolic. Those lucky enough to receive invitations left their own affairs to the hired man on that day and arrived at the scene of the festivities by sun-up, in numbers ranging from a dozen husky sons of the soil to twenty or thirty, and of all ages from eighteen to sixty. All wore overalls and started work at once.

There was no lack of material for the wall, most farms being more or less cluttered up with loose stones of all shapes and sizes. A recess was taken at noon, when doughnuts and huge jugs of cider and pails of buttermilk were passed around. Late in the afternoon the wall was completed, and all hands eagerly answered the call to supper.

The long table, made of boards covered with sheets and set on sawhorses, was laid in the orchard and heaped with food. A great iron pot bubbling over a fire out of doors yielded a flaky potpie for which a dozen chickens had been sacrificed. Mounds of bread, hot biscuits served with honey, boiled hams, snowy balls of pot-cheese, and grape and currant jelly were flanked by cole slaw, pickles, apples stewed in cider, apple and custard pies, brown crisp cookies and fresh doughnuts.

Coffee was made in a large boiler. There was plenty of rich cream, and earthenware pitchers at each end of the table held cider, buttermilk and lemonade.

After supper the women arrived, and the local fiddler, who probably had helped build the stone wall, tuned up for the dance, which lasted until it was time to go home to milk the cows.

Explaining It

Senator DuPont at a dinner in Washington said of a Florida failure: "Their explanation is about as satisfactory as the fortune teller gave. 'The fortune teller said to the young man:

"Useless to pretend that you have a long life before you. This ace of clubs, you see, bumps you off early. At the age of thirty-nine you will die."

"And this small card here," he said, "means that you'll marry at the age of thirty-eight and have sixteen children."

"Sixteen children?" said the young man. "But how can that be when I'm to die a year later—at thirty-nine, you know?"

"The fortune teller, turned red. "Then his face cleared and he smiled and said smoothly:

"You'll marry a widow with fifteen little ones."

WORLD COURT U. S. RESERVATIONS ARE CONSIDERED

3 OF THE U. S. SENATE'S CONDITIONS TO PARTICIPATION ARE ACCEPTED

4TH RESERVATION, HOWEVER, ENCOUNTERS MANY OBSTACLES

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, Sept. 1. — Three of the United States senate's reservations to participation in the world court were quickly accepted on the first reading today by the conference of 38 Hague court signatories, but obstacles were encountered when the fourth reservation came up for consideration.

It was felt here that the funeral of the senate's reservations had begun. The mere fact that only 38 of the 48 signatories to the court protocol consented to participate in the conference virtually condemned the reservations in advance since the senate stipulated that every reservation must be accepted by every signatory. League members here generally were agreed that the fifth of the senate's reservations would not be acceptable unless the United States were willing to restrict its application.

Senator Claude Swanson, Pat Harrison and T. H. Caraway, and Representatives Stephen O. Porter, Theodore E. Burton, Fred A. Britten and Andrew J. Montague were here today in unofficial capacities to watch the interment.

The principal countries not participating in today's conference were Latin American, who were understood to oppose the American reservations but who chose not to make a public stand in that position.

Professor Von Eysinga of Holland was elected president of the conference and immediately proposed that the session should be public, although it at first had appeared that they would be secret. Sir George Foster, representing Canada, warmly supported the president. Von Eysinga advocated approval of the reservations.

After two hours' discussion of the fourth United States reservation, without having reached any decision the conference turned to the fifth reservation. The first half of the fifth was accepted, whereupon the conference adjourned to permit unofficial discussion of the remainder of the fifth reservation which constitutes the only real obstacle of approval.

Predicting Earthquakes
The time is not far distant when scientists will be able to predict earthquakes with the same accuracy that astronomers are now able to predict the coming of a comet. This is the opinion held by Dr. Thomas Jaggar, one of the greatest volcanologists in the world. He is in charge of the government observatory in the Hawaiian Islands and has visited all the earthquake areas during the last quarter century. Doctor Jaggar is among those scientists who believe in studying the life processes of today rather than the fossils of the past. By observing the crust of the earth and by watching the eruptions and other movements, he thinks, it will be possible to forecast earthquake cycles with a reasonable degree of precision.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Building Stone Wall Occasion for Frolic

When a farmer in the early '50s needed a stone wall on his property he did not send for a stone mason, but invited his friends and neighbors to a stone-frolic. Those lucky enough to receive invitations left their own affairs to the hired man on that day and arrived at the scene of the festivities by sun-up, in numbers ranging from a dozen husky sons of the soil to twenty or thirty, and of all ages from eighteen to sixty. All wore overalls and started work at once.

There was no lack of material for the wall, most farms being more or less cluttered up with loose stones of all shapes and sizes. A recess was taken at noon, when doughnuts and huge jugs of cider and pails of buttermilk were passed around. Late in the afternoon the wall was completed, and all hands eagerly answered the call to supper.

The long table, made of boards covered with sheets and set on saw-horses, was laid in the orchard and heaped with food. A great iron pot bubbling over a fire out of doors yielded a flaky potpie for which a dozen chickens had been sacrificed. Mounds of bread, hot biscuits served with honey, boiled hams, snowy balls of pot-cheese, and grape and currant jelly were flanked by cole slaw, pickles, apples stewed in cider, apple and custard pies, brown crisp cookies and fresh doughnuts.

Coffee was made in a large boiler, there was plenty of rich cream, and earthenware pitchers at each end of the table held cider, buttermilk and lemonade.

After supper the women arrived, and the local fiddler, who probably had helped build the stone wall, tuned up for the dance, which lasted until it was time to go home to milk the cows.

Explaining It
Senator DuPont at a dinner in Washington said of a Florida failure: "Their explanation is about as satisfactory as the fortune teller gave."

"The fortune teller said to the young man: 'Useless to pretend that you have a long life before you. This ace of clubs, you see, bumps you off early. At the age of thirty-nine you will die.'"

"And this small card here," he said, "means that you'll marry at the age of thirty-eight and have sixteen children."

"Sixteen children?" said the young man. "But how can that be when I'm to die a year later—at thirty-nine, you know?"

"The fortune teller turned red."

"Then his face cleared and he smiled and said smoothly:

"You'll marry a widow with fifteen little ones."

OFF BEATEN PATHS OF OLD WORLD

Mrs. W. C. Cobb and Miss Genevieve Flanagan Blaze Their Own Trails

SEE EUROPE AS IT IS

Avoid the Baedeker Guide Group Travel So Much in Vogue

"There are two ways of seeing the Old World, the one, with a party of friends who do their travelling in a group, see only what is called the 'cream of Europe', attend social functions at their different resorts, travel via a bus and told of the beauties of the countries by a paid guide, and the other way, that of travelling through Europe in company with only one friend, lingering at places most alluring and conversing and coming in contact with the real conditions as they exist," said Mrs. W. C. Cobb this morning in an interview to the Brainerd Daily Dispatch who took the latter way in her tour this summer of France, Switzerland, and Italy.

Accompanied by Miss Genevieve Flanagan, Mrs. Cobb can speak with authority on the real conditions existing in France, Switzerland and Italy. It was Mrs. Cobb's second trip to Europe and especially these countries which she admires so much. The two report a most wonderful trip, most valuable in travel education as they visited the thousands of beauty and historical places which these countries are noted. Both are eagerly sought by the different clubs in Brainerd to give lectures on their travels. These talks will be given this fall and winter.

To describe the thousands of noteworthy sights witnessed by the two Brainerd ladies would be possible only in the writing of a travelogue.

Paris, noted for its attractiveness to tourists from all parts of the world was explored in an extensive way by Mrs. Cobb and Miss Flanagan. While there they made their home at the Paris club for American University Women situated in the Latin quarter of the city. This club during the war time was used as a hospital. Now it has been transformed into a select club for University Women only.

Their visit in Paris was most eventful in that it was taken just at that time when the France franc was wavering in the depths of despair, clinging to the hope of stabilization.

Discussing the attitude of the French people towards the United States debt settlement, Mrs. Cobb stated that the more intelligent and better class of French people realized that the conditions now existing were brought on by the war. The socialists and especially the students of France however were hostile towards America's attitude and often-times threatened tourists, refused them the courtesy even of allowing them to dine at places. Mrs. Cobb stated that they did not encounter any unpleasant experiences with the French people.

"The French people are very loyal to their country. They will not allow the franc to go as the German mark did. Many of them realize that it is not their country to blame but their politics. Secretly many of the people are praying for a man to lead their country like Mussolini," said Mrs. Cobb whose knowledge of the French language permitted her to converse with many French people.

The two Brainerd ladies were in Paris at the time of the French national holiday celebration which was held on July 13, 14 and 15. Paris during these days was the mecca for tourists holidaying there. Dances were held on the street in front of many of the night clubs and at the Monte Marte. Here they came in contact with the French people as they indulged in entertainment.

Vivid descriptions were also given by Mrs. Cobb of the Arc De Triumphant into which fourteen boulevards lead, and innumerable other interesting historical buildings and dungeons where history making prisoners were kept.

Particularly attractive were the gardens of flowers everywhere. Mrs. Cobb explained who described the sensation of an aeroplane ride over Paris, and the beauty of the scene.

"If only we could bring the French method of cultivating flowers to America. They utilize every possible space to make their country beautiful. And the streets are all so architecturally laid out and the numerous bridges of such picturesque structures," said Mrs. Cobb.

"I was told while in France that 50,000 Americans had made their homes in the southern part of sunny France and I can understand the reason for this," continued Mrs. Cobb, "the picturesque quaintness of the villages, the genial friendship prevailing, the beauty everywhere tends to make a person wish to live there."

The visitors were deeply impressed with the scene of the march of thousands of mangled veterans of the great war who marched under the Arc de Triumphant the Sunday before the celebration of Bastille Day.

"These men marched in a silent

parade in protest against the debt settlement. We watched the parade as it passed by in one formation for two hours. It was the saddest scene I have ever seen," said Mrs. Cobb.

"The American tourist trade in France has boosted the prices in France greatly," she continued "this is one of the reasons why the people of France do not welcome with open arms the American tourist. The middle classes are the ones most suffering while the poor classes are very poor. As for the wealthy people, the majority are sending their money out of their country. The French at the present time like the Germans better than they do the Americans. France appears hopeless at the present time. In fact there was no one I talked to, even the American consul who could voice any solution of the matter. I personally think that what France needs is to put more power into the hands of one man. In the countries I visited, I found that Italy was the most prosperous. Switzerland did not appear to have been hurt very much by the war. In England however the taxes are very high. I was told that one-quarter of a man's income went to the government. England is even worse off than France except that their government is stronger. The situation in France is the biggest enigma in Europe."

Discussing entry of the United States into the League of Nations, Mrs. Cobb stated that she would hesitate now about favoring this country's entry. She is however strong in favor of the United States entering the World Court on the condition that it be strictly a judicial body.

From Paris the Brainerd ladies motored on the century old highways to Marseilles, Toulon, Cannes, Nice, Menton and many other historically noted cities, towns and villages.

They journeyed through the lake region of Switzerland visiting the noted Lake Maggiore, near Geneva. The two were most impressed with the beauty of the Villa de Este, it being noted as the most beautiful in Europe. Here the artificial waterfalls, trees of every description gave a beauty to the place that could only be appreciated by the person who had seen it.

From Switzerland the two left for Italy. They spent ten days on the Riviera, where they were charmed by the beauty of the scenes. From there they went to Rome where they stopped at the "Boos," a place which also contained a theatre, the American consulate. The "Boos" was situated a stone's throw from the king's palace, and near the ancient Roman Forum.

One day Mrs. Cobb and Miss Flanagan had an audience with Pope Pius, whom Mrs. Cobb described as a smart looking man. They were not permitted to have a conversation with him. On this occasion they were obliged to wear special regalia with capes over their heads.

The first day in Rome was spent at the St. Peter's Cathedral, visiting the noted Coliseum and the Forum. The most awe inspiring sight of St. Peter's Cathedral was its entrance which had 284 double columns and 166 statues of saints of the church.

The Vatican with its two magnificent fountains was also another place visited. Another day was spent in the village of Ostia which is called the Pompey of Rome.

"The people in Italy appear to be well off," said Mrs. Cobb, "they worship Mussolini almost like a god. No one dares criticize him. There is no doubt, however, that Mussolini has done wonders for Italy. He has sensed the need of tourist trade and has done much towards encouraging it. Tourists now are treated much better on their visits to Rome than they were before when the tourists were literally robbed of their money by cab drivers and hotels. There were many soldiers in uniform in Italy, more than we had noticed in any other country."

To Produce Oil From Shale

It is reported that the South Manchurian Railway company has been experimenting at Fushan, Manchuria, with the dry-distillation process for producing oil from oil shale, and is now setting up a plant which will be finished in August. This plant will be capable of producing 400 tons of oil a day. If successful, it is possible that the company will erect another plant for operation in November of the present year.

Rattling Bones

Jean de Coldirodi, the noted young sculptor, said at a dinner in New York:

"For five years the emaciated girl, the straight-up-and-down, yard-of-pump-water girl, has been fashionable; but now, thank goodness, curves are coming back into their own again." Mr. de Coldirodi laughed.

"For my part," he said, "I never did like a girl to rattle in my arms."

Queen Raises Cotton

Queen Marie of Rumania has turned cotton planter. With some American cotton seeds she has been carrying on with great success a series of experiments in cotton culture at her farm near Bucharest. The queen rises early each morning and gives two hours' personal attention to care of plants. She has reported results of these tests to the ministry of agriculture and authorities hope that Rumania will soon be producing its own cotton. They have found American cotton seeds much more adaptable than the Egyptian or Indian.

For That Tired Feeling

Ment seems to be almost at the head of the list of iron foods; oysters are not far behind; spinach is as valuable as we have been taught to regard it; other leafy vegetables, such as cabbage, lettuce and chard, cannot compare with spinach. Many of the fruits and vegetables are low in iron, much lower than some of us have believed. Prunes and raisins, however, deserve a high rank, just as we have supposed. Potatoes are surprisingly good; indeed, they are better than many of the other vegetables, that is, if they are not depleted by careless preparation. Eggs are valuable. Whole cereals and bread made from the entire grain are important sources of iron. Dried beans are good iron foods. Although the glass of milk does not contain much iron, if taken in customary large amounts milk becomes quite important as a source of iron. Cane molasses is a much better source of iron than sugar—The Delineator.

Unshaved Saints

English artists in stained glass have been perturbed by the complaint of the chancellor of the diocese of Chester that ecclesiastical windows do the saints sparse justice in presenting these holy men wearing beards. Artists in stained glass retort that they aspire to present their subjects with as much accuracy as possible, and that history shows most of the saints wore beards, especially as they labored in countries where conditions rendered shaving difficult and unusual. Thus, despite protests of the offended chancellor, stained glass windows in churches will in future, as in the past, present views of saints "bearded like the pard."

A Squealing Tug

John was in New York with his father for the first time. He saw a small tug towing a large ship and heard the tug whistle loudly. "Oh, papa," he exclaimed, "the big ship's got the little one by the tail and it's squealing."

Official Sesqui-Centennial Band Plays Varied Programs for Crowds

Lieut. Bandmaster Joseph Kiefer and the Philadelphia Police Band

Lieutenant Joseph Kiefer Is Leader of Police Music Makers

Philadelphia, Pa.—There is something about a police band, with its big, upstanding players in their natty uniforms that makes it a little more exciting than any other kind of band. That is why all the visitors to the Sesqui-Centennial exposition are writing home about band master Lieutenant Joseph Kiefer and his fifty handsome music makers.

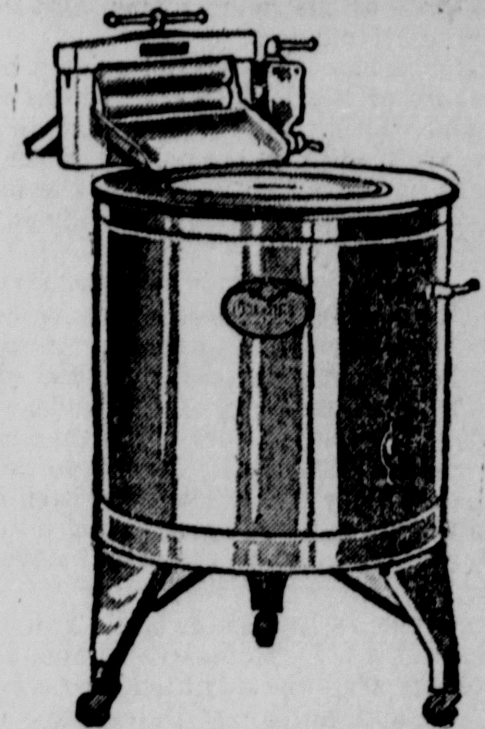

Lieutenant Kiefer's band is the official band of the Exposition. It ranks as one of the country's great musical organizations. Lieut.

tenant Kiefer was formerly a band master in the Navy. He spent six years trying to induce the municipal authorities in Philadelphia to start a police band. All the time he was arguing with them, he was working as a regular patrolman and getting together some of the splendid bunch who now form his band. He started with fourteen men. Today, the band's popularity is so great that, by giving a few concerts, Lieutenant Kiefer was able to turn over $200,000 to the Police Pension Club.

"Our kind of organization has to have a tremendous repertoire," Lieutenant Kiefer declares. "We are the people's own band and so, of course, we must make sure that we are able to cater to all tastes. This is easier than it was a few years ago, for the musical taste of the country is steadily rising. A few years ago America was noted for its bad taste in music. European countries set us down as crude and boorish because they said we cared only for ragtime. It was only when jazz succeeded ragtime that they began to see us in a different light. They liked jazz pretty well themselves and soon they realized that our national musical tendencies were getting better and better."

Lieutenant Kiefer balances his Sesqui-Centennial program with classic, semi-classic and popular music. His choice of the better type of popular number which will often be heard is "Somebody's Lonely."

"The French people are very loyal to their country. They will not allow the franc to go as the German mark did. Many of them realize that it is not their country to blame but their politics. Secretly many of the people are praying for a man to lead their country like Mussolini," said Mrs. Cobb whose knowledge of the French language permitted her to converse with many French people.

The two Brainerd ladies were in Paris at the time of the French national holiday celebration which was held on July 13, 14 and 15. Paris during these days was the mecca for tourists holidaying there. Dances were held on the street in front of many of the night clubs and at the Monte Marte. Here they came in contact with the French people as they indulged in entertainment.

Vivid descriptions were also given by Mrs. Cobb of the Arc De Triumphant into which fourteen boulevards lead, and innumerable other interesting historical buildings and dungeons where history making prisoners were kept.

Particularly attractive were the gardens of flowers everywhere, Mrs. Cobb explained who described the sensation of an aeroplane ride over Paris, and the beauty of the scene.

"If only we could bring the French method of cultivating flowers to America. They utilize every possible space to make their country beautiful. And the streets are all so architecturally laid out and the numerous bridges of such picturesque structures," said Mrs. Cobb.

"I was told while in France that 50,000 Americans had made their homes in the southern part of sunny France and I can understand the reason for this," continued Mrs. Cobb, "the picturesque quaintness of the villages, the genial friendship prevailing, the beauty everywhere tends to make a person wish to live there."

The visitors were deeply impressed with the scene of the march of thousands of mangled veterans of the great war who marched under the Arc de Triumphant the Sunday before the celebration of Bastille Day.

"These men marched in a silent

parade in protest against the debt settlement. We watched the parade as it passed by in one formation for two hours. It was the saddest scene I have ever seen," said Mrs. Cobb.

"The American tourist trade in France has boosted the prices in France greatly," she continued "this is one of the reasons why the people of France do not welcome with open arms the American tourist. The middle classes are the ones most suffering while the poor classes are very poor. As for the wealthy people, the majority are sending their money out of their country. The French at the present time like the Germans better than they do the Americans. France appears hopeless at the present time. In fact there was no one I talked to, even the American consul who could voice any solution of the matter. I personally think that what France needs is to put more power into the hands of one man. In the countries I visited, I found that Italy was the most prosperous. Switzerland did not appear to have been hurt very much by the war. In England however the taxes are very high. I was told that one-quarter of a man's income went to the government. England is even worse off than France except that their government is stronger. The situation in France is the biggest enigma in Europe."

Discussing entry of the United States into the League of Nations, Mrs. Cobb stated that she would hesitate now about favoring this country's entry. She is however strong in favor of the United States entering the World Court on the condition that it be strictly a judicial body.

From Paris the Brainerd ladies motored on the century old high-ways to Marseilles, Toulon, Cannes, Nice, Menton and many other historically noted cities, towns and villages.

They journeyed through the lake region of Switzerland visiting the noted Lake Maggiore, near Geneva. The two were most impressed with the beauty of the Villa de Este, it being noted as the most beautiful in Europe. Here the artificial waterfalls, trees of every description gave a beauty to the place that could only be appreciated by the person who had seen it.

Riviera, where they were charmed by the beauty of the scenes. From there they went to Rome where they stopped at the "Boos," a place which also contained a theatre, the American consulate. The "Boos" was situated a stone's throw from the king's palace, and near the ancient Roman Forum.

One day Mrs. Cobb and Miss Flanagan had an audience with Pope Pius, whom Mrs. Cobb described as a smart looking man. They were not permitted to have a conversation with him. On this occasion they were obliged to wear special regalia with capes over their heads.

The first day in Rome was spent at the St. Peter's Cathedral, visiting the noted Coliseum and the Forum. The most awe inspiring sight of St. Peter's Cathedral was its entrance which had 284 double columns and 166 statues of saints of the church.

The Vatican with its two magnificent fountains was also another place visited. Another day was spent in the village of Ostia which is called the Pompey of Rome.

"The people in Italy appear to be well off," said Mrs. Cobb, "they worship Mussolini almost like a god. No one dares criticize him. There is no doubt, however, that Mussolini has done wonders for Italy. He has sensed the need of tourist trade and has done much towards encouraging it. Tourists now are treated much better on their visits to Rome than they were before when the tourists were literally robbed of their money by cab drivers and hotels. There were many soldiers in uniform in Italy, more than we had noticed in any other country."

To Produce Oil From Shale

It is reported that the South Manchurian Railway company has been experimenting at Fushan, Manchuria, with the dry-distillation process for producing oil from oil shale, and is now setting up a plant which will be finished in August. This plant will be capable of producing 400 tons of oil a day. If successful, it is possible that the company will erect another plant for operation in November of the present year.

Rattling Bones

Jean de Coldirodi, the noted young sculptor, said at a dinner in New York:

"For five years the emaciated girl, the straight-up-and-down, yard-of-pump-water girl, has been fashionable; but now, thank goodness, curves are coming back into their own again."

Mr. de Coldirodi laughed. "For my part," he said, "I never did like a girl to rattle in my arms."

Queen Raises Cotton

Queen Marie of Rumania has turned cotton planter. With some American cotton seeds she has been carrying on with great success a series of experiments in cotton culture at her farm near Bucharest. The queen rises early each morning and gives two hours' personal attention to care of plants. She has reported results of these tests to the ministry of agriculture and authorities hope that Rumania will soon be producing its own cotton. They have found American cotton seeds much more adaptable than the Egyptian or Indian.

Charmer's Power Is Myth

For That Tired Feeling

Meat seems to be almost at the head of the list of iron foods; oysters are not far behind; spinach is as valuable as we have been taught to regard it; other leafy vegetables, such as cabbage, lettuce and chard, cannot compare with spinach. Many of the fruits and vegetables are low in iron, much lower than some of us have believed. Prunes and raisins, however, deserve a high rank, just as we have supposed. Potatoes are surprisingly good; indeed, they are better than many of the other vegetables, that is, if they are not depleted by careless preparation. Eggs are valuable. Whole cereals and bread made from the entire grain are important sources of iron. Dried beans are good iron foods. Although the glass of milk does not contain much iron, if taken in customary large amounts milk becomes quite important as a source of iron. Cane molasses is a much better source of iron than sugar.—The Delineator.

Unshaven Saints

English artists in stained glass have been perturbed by the complaint of the chancellor of the diocese of Chester that ecclesiastical windows do the saints sparse justice in presenting these holy men wearing beards. Artists in stained glass retort that they aspire to present their subjects with as much accuracy as possible, and that history shows most of the saints were bearded, especially as they labored in countries where conditions rendered shaving difficult and unusual. Thus, despite protests of the offended chancellor, stained glass windows in churches will in future, as in the past, present views of saints "bearded like the pard."

A Squealing Tug

John was in New York with his father for the first time. He saw a small tug towing a large ship and heard the tug whistle loudly. "Oh, papa," he exclaimed, "the big ship's got the little one by the tail and it's squealing."

Good Health Depends Upon Good Elimination.

RETENTION of bodily waste in the blood is called a "toxic condition." This often gives rise to a dull, languid feeling and, sometimes, toxic backaches and headaches. That the kidneys are not functioning properly is often shown by burning or scanty passage of secretions. Official Sesqui-Centennial Band Plays Varied Programs for Crowds

Lieut. Bandmaster Joseph Kiefer and the Philadelphia Police Band

Lieutenant Joseph Kiefer
Is Leader of Police
Music Makers

Philadelphia, Pa.—There is something about a police band, with its big, upstanding players in their natty uniforms that makes it a little more exciting than any other kind of band. That is why all the visitors to the Sesqui-Centennial exposition are writing home about band master Lieutenant Joseph Kiefer and his fifty handsome music makers.

Lieutenant Kiefer's band is the official band of the Exposition. It ranks as one of the country's great musical organizations. Lieutenant Kiefer was formerly a band master in the Navy. He spent six years trying to induce the municipal authorities in Philadelphia to start a police band. All the time he was arguing with them, he was working as a regular patrolman and getting together some of the splendid bunch who now form his band. He started with fourteen men. Today, the band's popularity is so great that, by giving a few concerts, Lieutenant Kiefer was able to turn over $200,000 to the Police Pension Club.

"Our kind of organization has to have a tremendous repertoire," Lieutenant Kiefer declares. "We are the people's own band and so, of course, we must make sure that we are able to cater to all tastes. This is easier than it was a few years ago, for the musical taste of the country is steadily rising. A few years ago America was noted for its bad taste in music. European countries set us down as crude and loathsome because they said we cared only for ragtime. It was only when jazz succeeded ragtime that they began to see us in a different light. They liked jazz pretty well themselves and soon they realized that our national musical tendencies were getting better and better."

Lieutenant Kiefer balances his Sesqui-Centennial program with classic, semi-classic and popular music. His choice of the better type of popular number which will often be heard is "Somebody's Lonely."

HAY FEVER

THE annual business session of the Interstate Hay Fever Association at Duluth today is important, so important, in fact, that it is something not to be sneezed at. We suppose the goldenrod is the official flower of the organization and the presiding officer is the Chief Sneeze.

We do not know what to do about hay fever. It is a misnomer, the "hay" part of the fever. For people suffer from the disease when hay is not cut.

In our Brainerd Dispatch notes of 25 years ago we noticed a Brainerd man who was reported suffering from hay fever. Well, things haven't changed in the quarter century which has flitted away and he still carries his burden of annually recurring hay fever.

Other diseases persist in unwelcome visits. We know of people who were severely beset by poison ivy, etc., and every year they have an anniversary touch of the malady.

We know of wood ticks which have bored into your frame and also linger for quite a while, presumably because care wasn't exercised in "unscrewing" the head of the pest.

Hay fever is no joke. A sufferer is a tearful sight to behold, for when the malady is in full bloom, eyes and nose seem to run a race as to which can shed the most moisture.

That Duluth convention, to our notion, is a sad affair, for those only slightly ill may be infected to a greater degree by some 100 per cent sneezers. But you can't prohibit the gathering. They get together and discuss cures and possible relief and take comfort in a general sharing of their misery. We suppose, too, when some one makes a motion or sneeze, it is unanimously echoed throughout the conference.

The nearest approach to the misery of hay fever, we believe, is a good old fashioned taste of the grip which was so popular some years ago. It's no wonder that the manufacturer of mentholatum has made a fortune and that so many other medicines and preparations made to relieve the strain on air passages are so eagerly sought by the hay fever sufferers.

To the Moses who can definitely and securely and permanently take a hay fever sufferer from his misery, untold wealth and adoration and thanksgiving await him in full flowing measure.

TRUCK OWNERS TO CONVENE

EVERY trade, every profession, every line of business has its association wherein members seek to better the condition of the group. In view of the nation-wide inquiry now under way by the Interstate Commerce Commission into the motor truck's bearing upon railroad service, truck owners of the state will be interested to know that the first annual convention of the Minnesota Commercial Truck Owners Association will be held on Thursday, September 9th.

The meeting will convene at 10 a. m. in the mayor's reception room at the court house in Minneapolis, and has been purposely set for Fair Week, in order that visitors and delegates from outside the Twin Cities may utilize the opportunity of taking in the fair after the convention is over. Every truck owner in either Class X or Class Y is cordially invited to be present, whether a member of the association or not.

TOURISTS WORSHIP

CHURCHES of Brainerd welcome tourists to worship here. Whether travel stained or dressed in their Sunday best, the church extends a cordial welcome to its children. Not only churches of Brainerd, but those of the range towns, also Pequot, Pine River, etc., receive large attendances.

And the Nebraska colony has set aside a building among the pines on the shore of Big Pelican lake where every Sunday services are held and visiting ministers, on vacation at the colony or in the vicinity, are glad to fill the pulpit. Where one is so close to nature, where sermons can be gained by the inspiration given in the great out-of-doors, one worships readily in the church of the countryside or the busy town.

THE Mellett investigation seems to have come to a halt. In spite of all the news stories, and the arrests made, nothing definite seems to have been gained. It is a sad commentary on the completeness of crime methods of the underworld which seems to shroud in impenetrable mystery the savage murder of the Canton, Ohio, newspaper publisher. Every so-called clue seems to have run against a stone wall. The unwritten code of the underworld is "death to a squealer," and so far no one seems to have imparted any information as to the actual slayers.

PRESIDENT HERMAN ROE of the State Fair Board has not forgotten when he was a kid. He has just announced that "kids under 12 years of age are to be admitted free every day of the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy Exposition, which opens next Saturday morning." No grownup need accompany the child or children to secure this concession made to the childhood of the state. So there need be no knothole gang at our great fair.

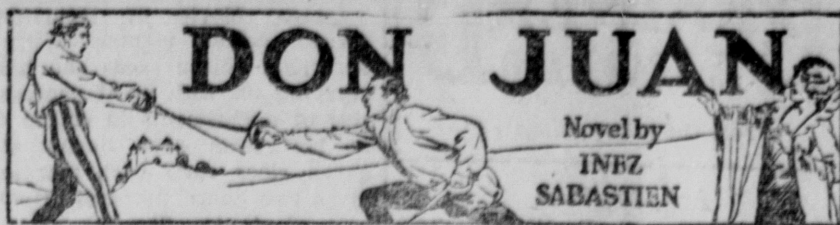

THE state highway department is anxious to have traffic laws enforced, but it is rightly incensed when counterfeit agents stop traffic near Jackson, Minn., and "fine" motorists for disregarding "stop" signs at rail crossings. The crossing law is administered by the State Railroad and Warehouse commission, but enforcement is in the hands of local peace officers.

"THE BRAINERD DISPATCH reports the receipts of an unusual, in fact an unprecedented news story by wire the other day. It concerned three men battling over a girl, and not a word was said about her being pretty."—Duluth Herald.

"Not every 19-year-old girl can swim the English channel," says the Deer River News, "but that does not prohibit her paddling around in dish water once in a while."

THE greatest American weakness is intending to save a part of next week's wages, says the Park Rapids Enterprise.

GENERAL humidity was in charge of the temperature today and everything had a sticky touch.

He would not escape now, she told herself. Beside the men who held him stood others, their swords drawn. Even he could not elude them, could not fight his way to freedom with a weapon. And yet—yet one never could be sure of him. She had thought that his heart was hers; had been sure of it, time after time. He had held her life in his two hands. She had ignored all other men, all the plans in which her brother sought to enroll her interest, that she might remain in her room, preparing for his coming, and when he had come, then she had rejoiced in his presence and in the happiness he brought her. And now she knew that always he had played with her, that another had been enthroned in his heart. She had fought against recognizing the contempt that had looked out from his eyes; had told herself that he could look at a woman in no other way.

She had been abject before him, had made her clever, cruel mind subservient to his. Never had she tried to hide her love of him, but rather had she gloried in showing him how great it was.

She had been grateful for his caresses, avid for the slightest token of his affection.

And now she knew that always he had laughed at her, scorned her, used her only as a means, she told herself, of forgetting that white-faced slip of a girl who had just run sobbing down the stairs.

His eyes met hers, mocking her, gibing at her. She grew hot as she thought of the things he must be remembering.

She could save him now; a word to her brother, and Juan would be taken to prison, and then at once set free. Or she could let him go to his death, and let her heart die with him.

She knew which he would choose. But she would not admit to herself that he preferred death to her. Meeting his gaze, she pleaded with him; her dark eyes begged him to show some least sign of caring for her, that she might save him.

The mockery in his glance answered her.

Her face hardened into its mask again. Angerly she clenched her hands, stood rigid, her mouth a straight, hard line, her eyes narrowed, while the soldiers led him past her, down the stairs. Yet, despite her quick, flashing anger, she could not but feel admiration for him. She had wanted to give up everything for love—he had sacrificed his life for it.

She stood listening to the footsteps descending the marble stairs, his and those of the soldiers who gripped his arms so tightly. The sound was like the tolling of bells for her own burial. She wanted to run after him, to command the soldiers to release him. But pride came to her rescue, that and the knowledge that he would be quite likely to refuse her aid.

He would go through the streets of Rome for the last time; for the first time would look up at the moonlit sky, and breathe the free, soft air. It was near dawn; birds could be twittering in the shrubbery of the walled gardens that he would pass. Never again would he hear them.

It is a sad commentary on the completeness of crime methods of the underworld which seems to shroud in impenetrable mystery the savage murder of the Canton, Ohio, newspaper publisher. Every so-called clue seems to have run against a stone wall. The unwritten code of the underworld is "death to a squealer," and so far no one seems to have imparted any information as to the actual slayers.

PRESIDENT HERMAN ROE of the State Fair Board has not forgotten when he was a kid. He has just announced that "kids under 12 years of age are to be admitted free every day of the Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy Exposition, which opens next Saturday morning." No grownup need accompany the child or children to secure this concession made to the childhood of the state. So there need be no knothole gang at our great fair.

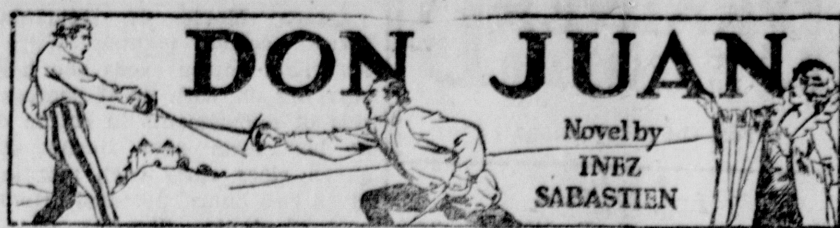

The state highway department is anxious to have traffic laws enforced, but it is rightly incensed when counterfeit agents stop traffic near Jackson, Minn., and "fine" motorists for disregarding "stop" signs at rail crossings. The crossing law is administered by the State Railroad and Warehouse commission, but enforcement is in the hands of local peace officers.

"Don Juan," screen play by Best Meredyth, starring John Barrymore, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
His father's warning—"Take women's love scornfully—and forget"—has made Juan the world's greatest lover. His cynicism is checked by Madonna-like Adriana Varanese; loving her, he reforms, but incurs the enmity of infamous Lucretia Borgia, who loves him, and Donati, her kinsman, who covets Adriana. Through circumstances Juan's faith in Adriana is destroyed; cynical again, he becomes the lover of Lucretia. To save her father, Adriana marries Donati, but Juan hides in the bridal chamber and kills Donati. Adriana flees; her father is killed; Juan is captured; Lucretia rejoices.

He would not escape now, she told herself. Beside the men who held him stood others, their swords drawn. Even he could not evade them, could not fight his way to freedom with a weapon. And yet—yet one never could be sure of him.
She had thought that his heart was hers; had been sure of it, time after time. He had held her life in his two hands. She had ignored all other men, all the plans in which her brother sought to enroll her interest, that she might remain in her rooms, preparing for his coming, and when he had come, then she had rejoiced in his presence and in the happiness he brought her.
And now she knew that always he had played with her, that another had been enthroned in his heart. She had fought against recognizing the contempt that had looked out from his eyes; had told herself that he could look at a woman in no other way.

She had been abject before him, had made her clever, cruel mind subservient to his. Never had she tried to hide her love of him, but rather had she gloried in showing him how great it was.

She had been grateful for his caresses, avid for the slightest token of his affection.

And now she knew that always he had laughed at her, scorned her, used her only as a means, she told herself, of forgetting that white-faced slip of a girl who had just run sobbing down the stairs.

His eyes met hers, mocking her, glib at her. She grew hot as she thought of the things he must be remembering.

She could save him now; a word to her brother, and Juan would be taken to prison, and then at once set free. Or she could let him go to his death, and let her heart die with him.

She knew which he would choose. But she would not admit to herself that he preferred death to her. Meeting his gaze, she pleaded with him; her dark eyes begged him to show some least sign of caring for her, that she might save him.

The mockery in his glance answered her.

Her face hardened into its mask again. Anger she clenched her hands, stood rigid, her mouth a straight, hard line, her eyes narrowed, while the soldiers led him past her, down the stairs. Yet, despite her quick, flashing anger, she could not but feel admiration for him. She had wanted to give up everything for love—he had sacrificed his life for it.

She stood listening to the footsteps descending the marble stairs, his and those of the soldiers who gripped his arms so tightly. The sound was like the tolling of bells for her own burial. She wanted to run after him, to command the soldiers to release him. But pride came to her rescue, and that and the knowledge that he would be quite likely to refuse her aid.

He would go through the streets of Rome for the last time; for the first time would look up at the moonlit sky, and breathe the free, wet air. It was near dawn; birds could be twittering in the shrubbery of the walled gardens that he could pass. Never again would he hear them.

$3,500,000 FAIR PROGRAM READY

Agricultural, Livestock and Industrial Resources to be Displayed at State Fair.

THE Minnesota State Fair and Northwest Dairy Exposition will be held in the Twin Cities September 4 to 11. With premiums totaling $145,819.50 offered with livestock exhibits coming from all parts of the continent, with an educational program that tops that of other years, and with an entertainment bill that will provide a thousand thrills, this year's fair will be the "biggest and best" ever.

The Minnesota State Fair has long been recognized as the "World's Greatest State Fair." It is going to live up to its name. It is going to set a new record for both quality and quantity of exhibits this year! In reality, it is going to present a score of fairs within a fair.

Of especial interest to visitors will be the livestock end of the fair. More than 1,000 head of the finest dairy and beef cattle in the country will be on display in the mammoth $500,000.00 Cattle Barn. Premiums totaling $28,786.00 are offered in this department.

The horse department is making preparations for the biggest show in years. With a prize list of $20,530.00, an increase over that of a year ago, both the light and heavy horse shows promise to be banner ones. The night horse show will be staged five nights, from Monday to Friday evenings inclusive.

The swine, sheep, goats and poultry divisions are offering liberal premiums, with record shows assured.

The county booth competition in the Agricultural building will bring out the keenest competition in years. More than 40 counties have entered exhibits.

All kinds of fruits, flower, and vegetables will be shown in the Horticultural building, which will prove one of the most inviting buildings on the grounds to fair visitors.

Women visitors will find an entirely different type of exhibit in the Woman's building. This department has been reorganized and modernized and divided into four units. One unit will feature food, one will stress government, a third unit will be devoted to home decoration, and the fourth to education, especial attention being paid to wardrobes for the school girl and professional women.

Boys and girls enrolled in club work will demonstrate various club projects in their own building. More than 1,100 youngsters, representing every county in the state, will be brought to the fair with all expenses paid as guests of the fair.

The Fine Arts show will feature a $500,000.00 loan exhibit, in addition to the work of Minnesota artists.

"How the taxpayer's dollar" is spent will be visualized in the mammoth exhibit of 36 state departments and institutions in the State's Exhibits building. An exhibit of wild game will be an outstanding attraction.

Wanted to Have It Over

Ruth, age five, had coaxed repeatedly in the afternoon to be permitted to go two doors down the street to visit with a little playmate, but the permission had been refused. Sitting on the back door step her course of action had been decided upon, and she called to her mother and said:

"Mother, I'm going now."

Mother replied: "Ruth, if you go, I shall have to whip you."

Ruth was silent for a while, but moved by a sudden inspiration came into the house, approached her mother gravely, and said:

"Well, mother, if you're going to whip me, whip me now, and then I'll go."—Indianapolis News.

The racing scene is a depiction of the famous Kentucky derby and is done with striking realism.

"SOME WILD NOTIONS I HAVE KNOWN"

By the REV. ROY L. SMITH, D. D.
Pastor Simpson M. E. Church, Minneapolis

"CONSCIENCE DOETH MAKE COWARDS OF US ALL"

Only a guilty conscience does that. An approving conscience can make a timid man lion-hearted and the weak invincible.

Conscience only makes cowards of those who have done wrong. It is a relentless persecutor when we have done evil and an invaluable ally when we are right.

"He has the strength of ten men whose heart is pure," says the wise man. He has the strength of a craven whose heart is evil and whose conscience is accusing.

Leo Tolstoy lived and wrote during Russia's most terrible days. Siberia was the ghastly receptacle for all those who defied the tyranny of the Czars. No man's life was safe if his brain was active and his opinions became vocal. Subserviency and safety went together. But Tolstoy had a conscience which he mixed thoroughly with his thinking and while he spoke the most revolutionary doctrines the house of Romanoff dared not touch him. His conscience made him a prophet, not a coward.

John Bunyan, the unschooled thinker, spent twelve years in Bedford jail because he defied the tyranny of English ecclesiasticism and political knavery. He might have been liberated if he had agreed to refrain from preaching the doctrine of freedom of speech and liberty of worship. But his conscience would not allow him to accept freedom at the expense of moral honor. Because of his intrepid stand he became the spiritual leader of the non-conformists and was lovingly called "Bishop" Bunyan!

Old Doctor Still, at Kirksville, Missouri, was badgered by the medical men, ridiculed by the press and denounced from the pulpit. But his conscience told him that he was right in preaching a system of healing without drugs and today his students are ministering to the suffering throughout the world. His conscience made him the founder of a school of healing.

"Send for the honest priest," begged the wicked old tyrant, Lorenzo de Medici on his deathbed, and Savonarola—hunted and persecuted—came to the side of his enemy to hear his confession. A conscience had inspired trust and confidence even in the heart of a foe.

A conscience may be an ally or a plague; a friend or an enemy. It depends upon the direction a man's life is taking.

Boyish felt shapes continue to rule for sports wear.

Blouse and bolero treatments are found on most of the early Fall dresses designed for day and formal wear. Where the blouse adds width to the upper portion of the dress the skirt is almost invariably slender. Full, flaring skirts on the contrary often accompany the bolero. The sleeveless bolero designed for formal occasions is posed over a form-fitting bodice. The bolero extends above the normal waist line. A sash is worn about the normal waist tying at one side and the full skirt flares at the hem line.

Beaded taffeta evening gowns are among the unusual Fall models which follow the bouffant lines of period frocks. One particularly beautiful model is fashioned of gold and bronze changeable taffeta beaded in gold and bronze beads. The bodice is slender following the lines of the bust and narrowing at the waist line with horizontal rows of beadwork forming a girle effect just below the normal waist line.

The skirt which gathers on at the waist is widened at the hem where horizontal and alternate rows of gold and bronze beadwork extend to the knees. Black taffeta frocks beaded in white crystals are also shown for dinner occasions.

Organdy dresses have suddenly appeared in numbers on Fifth Avenue. Ecru blond shades posed over black slips and worn with black satin bows with streamer ends posed at the side front are those most noted. A typical frock of this sort, made of blond organdy, has a semi-fitted bodice of normal waist length with a full gathered skirt finished with an eight-inch hem-stitched hem. Under this is worn a slender black satin slip. The sleeves may be either short or long and the neckline is made in fishu effect. A black satin bow is posed on the left hip with a streamer end extending the length of the dress.

IN the American constitution its makers attained a two-fold achievement: they provided a central form of government equipped to perform national functions adequately, and they left to local governing bodies the responsibility of local affairs. The people's need, as manifest even in the nation's babyhood, determined this governmental structure.

The Bell System is a similar division of responsibility, visioned from a forecast of the nation's communication needs when the telephone was young in service. The Associated Companies are specialists in local service problems, with local operating forces identified and familiar with the needs of the communities they serve. The parent company undertakes the solution of the problems that are common to all.

FAME AND FORTUNE SMILE ON YOUNG SHIP-MODEL BUILDERS

U. S. Bureau Crowns Achievements of Boys Who Build Miniature Ocean-Going Steamers.

ONLY a few years ago Roscoe and Wallace Good, of Pasadena, California, like countless other American boys, were spending many hours of play in floating chip-and-matchstick boats in any body of water that was available from a puddle to lake or river.

Today a ship model just completed by these two boys has been accepted by the United States Steamboat Inspection Service, a Bureau of the United States Department of Commerce, as one of the features of its exhibit at the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition. As builders of ship models for a number of the country's largest ship operators, the boys' annual business amounts to thousands of dollars a year.

The First Model

The interest of the Good brothers in constructing miniature ships to conform in every detail with actual sea-going vessels was aroused during the closing days of the World War, when throughout the United States there rang a cry for ships and still more ships to carry men, munitions and supplies to the War Zone. Their first built-to-scale model was a Skinner and Eddy type freighter constructed from a plan in a marine publication. Other built-to-scale models followed.

Such models are ordinarily built, at a cost running from $2,000 to $30,000, by experts of long experience. Infinite care, exactitude and patience are required for their construction. The builders work from the plans and sketches used by the builders of the ship itself.

It frequently takes six months to complete a single model.

The first models constructed by the two youngsters aroused the interest of friends of the family; and, most important of all from the standpoint of the boys' future, the interest of a West Coast ship owner. Impressed by the graceful lines of the diminutive vessels and the painstaking attention to the most minute details, the ship owner gave the youthful builders an order for a model of a vessel then under construction.

A Unique Ship Yard

Similar orders were received from other ship operators. The boys' workshop became a veritable shipyard from which were turned out small-scale replicas of some of the finest vessels in the United States Merchant Marine. Their profits began to assume imposing proportions.

The latest model built by the two young Goods is that of the S. S. Malolo. The Malolo, now under construction in Philadelphia for the San Francisco-Honolulu run, is the largest and speediest high-powered passenger steamship ever built in the United States. She has a length of 582 feet, a beam of 82 feet and a displacement of 23,000 tons. She will have a sustained sea speed of 22 knots.

Every hatchway, porthole, rope and spar on this gigantic new Queen of the Pacific is reproduced on the model. Built to a scale of one-eighth inch to a foot, the model is a little less than seventy-three inches in length, with a beam of ten and three-eighths inches. It is this model that will be on exhibition at the Sesqui-Centennial.

The Commonwealth

IN the American constitution its makers attained a two-fold achievement: they provided a central form of government equipped to perform national functions adequately, and they left to local governing bodies the responsibility of local affairs. The people's need, as manifest even in the nation's babyhood, determined this governmental structure.

The Bell System is a similar division of responsibility, visioned from a forecast of the nation's communication needs when the telephone was young in service. The Associated Companies are specialists in local service problems, with local operating forces identified and familiar with the needs of the communities they serve. The parent company undertakes the solution of the problems that are common to all.

America today has a telephone service that is nationwide and unified. A backward look to the beginnings of the telephone shows that this could not have come about without an organization paralleling that of the American Union, capable of expanding with the growth of the nation.

FAME AND FORTUNE SMILE ON YOUNG SHIP-MODEL BUILDERS

U. S. Bureau Crowns Achievements of Boys Who Build Miniature Ocean-Going Steamers.

ONLY a few years ago Roscoe and Wallace Good, of Pasadena, California, like countless other American boys, were spending many hours of play in floating chip-and-matchstick boats in any body of water that was available from a puddle to lake or river.

Today a ship model just completed by these two boys has been accepted by the United States Steamboat Inspection Service, a Bureau of the United States Department of Commerce, as one of the features of its exhibit at the Sesqui-Centennial Exposition. As builders of ship models for a number of the country's largest ship operators, the boys' annual business amounts to thousands of dollars a year.

The First Model

The interest of the Good brothers in constructing miniature ships to conform in every detail with actual sea-going vessels was aroused during the closing days of the World War, when throughout the United States there rang a cry for ships and still more ships to carry men, munitions and supplies to the War Zone. Their first built-to-scale model was a Skinner and Eddy type freighter constructed from a plan in a marine publication. Other built-to-scale models followed.

Such models are ordinarily built, at a cost running from $2,000 to $30,000, by experts of long experience. Infinite care, exactitude and patience are required for their construction. The builders work from the plans and sketches used by the builders of the ship itself.

It frequently takes six months to complete a single model.

The first models constructed by the two youngsters aroused the interest of friends of the family; and, most important of all from the standpoint of the boys' future, the interest of a West Coast ship owner. Impressed by the graceful lines of the diminutive vessels and the painstaking attention to the most minute details, the ship owner gave the youthful builders an order for a model of a vessel then under construction.

A Unique Ship Yard

Similar orders were received from other ship operators. The boys' workshop became a veritable shipyard from which were turned out small-scale replicas of some of the finest vessels in the United States Merchant Marine. Their profits began to assume imposing proportions.

The latest model built by the two young Goods is that of the S. S. Malolo. The Malolo, now under construction in Philadelphia for the San Francisco-Honolulu run, is the largest and speediest high-powered passenger steamship ever built in the United States. She has a length of 582 feet, a beam of 83 feet and a displacement of 22,000 tons. She will have a sustained sea speed of 22 knots.

Every hatchway, porthole, rope and spar on this gigantic new Queen of the Pacific is reproduced on the model. Built to a scale of one-eighth inch to a foot, the model is a little less than seventy-three inches in length, with a beam of ten and three-eighths inches. It is this model that will be on exhibition at the Sesqui-Centennial.

OLYMPIC TEAM CUT TO MERE SKELETON

COACHES ARE DECREASED, OTHER CHANGES MADE

WIVES OF OFFICIALS AND ATHLETES MAY BE LEFT AT HOME

HOUSING OF THE TEAM MAY BE PROVIDED BY LEASING A SHIP

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
New York, Sept. 1.—Reduction of the 1928 Olympic team to a bare skeleton, decrease of the number of coaches and officials and a suggestion that the wives of officials and athletes be left at home, will be recommended by the committee which recently returned from a survey of the field in Amsterdam.

The committee, which looked over all the quarters available for the housing of the team, which will be sent to the games in 1928, came back convinced that it will be impossible to take care of a big team comfortably without building a place and that it is out of the question.

It was felt that the only solution would be found in chartering a good sized ship and using the ship as a hotel as was done at the Stockholm games.

Rather than give the athletes any cause to complain as they did in 1920 in Antwerp and two years ago in Paris, it was suggested that the members of the team could be given first class cabins. This, however, would mean that the team would have to be held to the bare minimum and the number of officials and coaches would have to be reduced in the same proportion or it would take the Leviathan to keep them all satisfied.

After the Paris games two years ago, it was realized that to keep within the limitations of a pocket-book that is never too crowded, it would be a practical and an economical move to send only those athletes to Amsterdam who were almost certain to be starters in the games.

There were not many complaints two years ago from the athletes as there were in 1920 about the large number of cabins that were given to officials and their wives while the athletes had to satisfy themselves with quarters in the hold, but the "wife question" presented another problem in 1928.

When several wealthy patrons were approached for subscriptions to help pay the expenses, the solicitors were asked to present a list of the number of officials and their wives that were to accompany the team. It was brought out that all of the officials paid fares for the members of their families who accompanied them but they were asked why the athletes should not be given the best quarters even if it was necessary to send the families on other ships.

The committee, it was learned, will suggest that a ship be chartered and anchored off shore in the Zeider See, far out enough to be removed from the mosquito zone, and that a number of small motor boats could be secured to be used as ferries. This plan, it was suggested, would also have its disciplinary advantages.

The committee was very much impressed with the elaborate plans for the organization and training of a team that have been made in Germany and the committee members returned with a warning that Germany is going to be one of the most dangerous rivals of the United States.

The Germans and the English already have secured quarters in Amsterdam but their problem was not as hard, as their teams will be much smaller and they will not have to be sent and kept as a unit.

Nationalists Wins Over Moore

Chicago—Young Nationalists, Filipino bantamweight, won a referee's decision over Pal Moore, Memphis, in a fast 10 round match at the Coliseum last night.

Schoolboy Is Insured

Fred Ortman, nineteen-year-old hurler for the Portland Beavers of the Pacific Coast league, has been insured by the club management for $100,000. Young Ortman is a Portland high school boy, and is looked upon as one of baseball's greatest finds. He recently pitched a one-hit game in Los Angeles.

PITCHERS FOR N.E. AND Y.M.C.A. ARE ABOUT EQUAL

VAN WALK AND JARBO TO SHARE SHARE WORK FOR N. E.; BOTH EFFECTIVE

ENGBRETSON AND SANDGREN IN GOOD TRIM FOR DUTY FOR Y. M. C. A.

In pitching strength, the Y. M. C. A. and N. E. stand about even, the two hurlers of each team being on as even a keel of effectiveness as can be found, based on their work during the season.

Van Walk and Jarbo will share the burden of bringing to the Northeast section of the city the first championship ever held there. Both have done good work during the league season, and it goes without saying that they will be out to turn in their best performances when they step into the box.

Engbretson and Sandgren are the Y. M. C. A. hopes, and with them, the hopes rank high. Both are superb with any kind of a team behind them. If they receive proper support, it will not be surprising to see them turn in two or three hit games, with but a score or two against them. In fact, fans who attend the series games may be treated to some high class pitchers' battles with one run deciding the victory.

In games won and lost during the season, Jarbo leads the quartette, having pitched three games, winning all of them. Sandgren is next with five victories and two defeats; Van Walk ranks third with six wins and four losses, while Engbretson comes in a strong fourth with four victories and the same number of defeats. Engbretson had hard luck in two or three of his games, when he pitched fine ball but was given ragged support by a makeshift line-up. With a regular team behind him, playing the kind of ball they are capable of, he is good for a victory.

In point of runs made off these pitchers, and hitting average against them by their opponents during the season, Sandgren again stands at the top. The figures for number of games, runs, average of runs per game, and hits made off them by opponents are as follows:

Player	G	R	A	V	A	R	H	Pct.
Sandgren	7	16	2.29	178	38			.213
Jarbo	3	11	3.67	78	20			.258
Van Walk	11	47	4.27	316	80			.252
Engbretson	8	38	4.75	232	60			.259

The deduction is that the series games are a toss-up, no matter what pitchers oppose each other. The games will depend a great deal on the defensive work of the two infields, and the ability to concentrate the attack for a few runs' lead. The pitchers of both teams are fairly sure to deliver the goods.

N. E. is making great plans for the game Thursday night. All the merchants of that section of town are announcing the closing of their stores at 5:30, in order to give themselves and their clerks a chance to witness the game. Northeast citizens are behind their team to a man, with the finest spirit ever exhibited for any team in the city league. Preparations are being made to have a band lead the parade along A street to the ball grounds.

In case the grounds are wet, or rain interferes, the game will be postponed until Friday night.

FINISH IN BOTH LEAGUES THRILLING ONE

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS CRUSH PIT-RATES IN A DOUBLE HEADER

NEW YORK YANKEES MEET THEIR JINX, THE PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

New York, Sept. 1.—(UP)—The baseball season, which ends this month, entered the home stretch today with the race tightening in both leagues and a thrilling finish almost certain in the National.

The St. Louis Cardinals, by crushing the championship Pittsburgh Pirates in a double header, gained two full games and took the league lead. Cincinnati, losing a close game to the Chicago Cubs, was in second place, only half a game behind, while Pittsburgh was in third place, another half game back of the Reds. September thus opened with three teams virtually tied for first place.

Chicago is not entirely out of the running either. Only four games behind Pittsburgh and with a record of nine victories in their last 10 games, the Cubs figure they may be in at the death.

The standing of the four teams in one of the closest league finishes in baseball history today was:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
St. Louis	75	54	.581
Cincinnati	74	54	.577
Pittsburgh	71	52	.577
Chicago	69	58	.543

In the American league the leading New York Yankees met their jinx, Philadelphia, in the first of a seven-game series and were defeated 8 to 5. At the same time the Cleveland Indians, coming down the war path, tomahawk in hand, scalped the St. Louis Browns in a 12-inning contest and moved to within 5½ games of the leaders. The Athletics were in third place, 2½ games behind Cleveland.

Watching the Scoreboard

Yesterday's Hero—Percy Lee Jones, portside hurler for the Chicago Cubs, who fanned nine Cincinnati Red batsmen to win 1 to 0.

By taking both sides of a double-header with the Pittsburgh Pirates, the St. Louis Cardinals came out in front in the National league pennant race. The St. Louisians won the first 6 to 1 and then took the second nearly as easily from the world champions, 2 to 1.

The Phillies stopped the Boston Braves 7 to 2 without a great deal of effort. Second Baseman Friberg went to bat four times and obtained a quartet of singles.

The Philadelphia Athletics ran Herb Pennock off the mound to win from the New York Yankees, 8 to 5. Pennock yielded 10 hits before he was taken out in the third.

Coveleskie of the Washington Senators blanked the Red Sox 2 to 0, holding the latter to five ineffective hits. It took the Cleveland Indians 12 innings before they got the St. Louis Browns' number, 6 to 5.

The Chicago White Sox ran away with the first stanza of a doubleheader with the Detroit Tigers 19 to 2 and then lost the second 7 to 6. The Sox made 23 hits in the first game and 15 in the second, but the Tigers' defense tightened up in the curtain closer.

Unable to fathom the curves sent over by Pipgras, star St. Paul pitcher, the association leading Brewers went down to defeat 8 to 0. Only two hits were registered by the Brewers in the nine innings Pipgras worked and during which time he struck out 14 men, setting an association record for the season.

The Colonels downed the Senators and gained a full game on the Brewers in the pennant race. The Colonels were outbatted but managed to bunch their safeties in two innings and won 6 to 5.

Indianapolis also kept in the running for the association championship by handing the Hens a 4 to 2 trimming in a pitchers' duel between Speece and McNamara.

Hitting two pitchers for a total of 16 hits, the Kansas City Blues took the first game of the series from the Millers 9 to 3.

MANY MAJOR LEAGUE CLUBS NEED CHANGES

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, Sept. 1.—Miller Huggins, of all the major league managers, can face another season with less worry than his rivals. The manager of the prospective American league champions is perhaps the only pilot in the major leagues who is not faced with the necessity of a reorganization.

Strange things can happen in one year when the luck breaks. This time last season, instead of being out in front, the Yankees were firmly established in the second division and there seemed to be little hope for the future.

The Babe wasn't doing any too well, the pitchers weren't going and there was a huge hole in the middle of the infield. Huggins knew that he had to find a shortstop and a second baseman and luck was with him. He found Tony Lazzeri and Mark Koenig and they meant the difference between the second division and a pennant.

Any ball club can use a good pitcher and Huggins would not turn down a chance to get another experienced hurler and he also could use a good young catcher, but the club would not be lost without either one.

The Philadelphia Athletics are fairly well fixed with playing material and Connie Mack may not make any important changes. He believes that his team is a prospective champion and that it failed this year only because of a lack of experience.

The St. Louis Browns, which were such a disappointment this season, may change managers as George Sisler admits that he is discouraged and wouldn't object if the owners decided to get another manager. If Sisler is relieved, however, he probably will be traded as he said sometime ago that if he gave up the job he would leave the club.

The annual report that Ty Cobb does not want his job at the helm of the Detroit Tigers has been around again this year. Cobb is reaching the end of his active career and it is understood that he wants to get out of the game and get into private business. If Cobb does decide to retire it is understood that Dan Howley, manager of the Toronto International league club, will succeed him.

Wilbert Robinson, president-manager of the Brooklyn Robins, has announced definitely that he will not handle the club on the field next year and it is understood that Max Carey, former Pittsburgh captain, may be given the job.

Jack Fournier and Zach Wheat, two veteran Brooklyn stars, who had been considered as candidates to succeed Robby probably will be traded, it is understood.

John McGraw, manager of the Giants, has intimated very strongly that he is going to build over his club. He wants an outfielder to succeed Irish Meusel and a young catcher. He could also use some pitchers.

The Cincinnati Reds, failing this year because of infield weakness, will try to find a new shortstop and another third baseman. The team has plenty of good pitching but Jack Hendricks blamed the collapse of the team on a shortstop weakness, figuring that it cost the team at least nine games.

The Washington Senators will have to rebuild at several positions and Bucky Harris may decide to trade a couple of players who haven't been getting along with him. He probably could use Goose Goslin to a big advantage in a trade.

The Pittsburgh Pirates, if they fail to win the National league pennant, may have a new manager next season. Despite the claim that Bill McKechnie and Fred Clark have been in perfect harmony in the roles of dual managers, the release of Max Carey brought out some facts which served to prove that there was a lack of harmony on the bench.

FINISH IN BOTH LEAGUES THRILLING ONE

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS CRUSH PI-RATES IN A DOUBLE HEADER

NEW YORK YANKEES MEET THEIR JINX, THE PHILADELPHIA ATHLETICS

New York, Sept. 1.—(UP)—The baseball season, which ends this month, entered the home stretch today with the race tightening in both leagues and a thrilling finish almost certain in the National.

The St. Louis Cardinals, by crushing the championship Pittsburgh Pirates in a double header, gained two full games and took the league lead. Cincinnati, losing a close game to the Chicago Cubs, was in second place, only half a game behind, while Pittsburgh was in third place, another half game back of the Reds. September thus opened with three teams virtually tied for first place.

Chicago is not entirely out of the running either. Only four games behind Pittsburgh and with a record of nine victories in their last 10 games, the Cubs figure they may be in at the death.

The standing of the four teams in one of the closest league finishes in baseball history today was:

Team	W.	L.	Pct.
St. Louis	75	54	.581
Cincinnati	74	54	.578
Pittsburgh	71	52	.577
Chicago	69	58	.543

In the American league the leading New York Yankees met their jinx, Philadelphia, in the first of a seven-game series and were defeated 8 to 5. At the same time the Cleveland Indians, coming down the war path, tomahawk in hand, scalped the St. Louis Browns in a 12-inning contest and moved to within 5½ games of the leaders. The Athletics were in third place, 2½ games behind Cleveland.

Watching the Scoreboard

Yesterday's Hero—Percy Lee Jones, portside hurler for the Chicago Cubs, who fanned nine Cincinnati Red batsmen to win 1 to 0.

By taking both sides of a double-header with the Pittsburgh Pirates, the St. Louis Cardinals came out in front in the National league pennant race. The St. Louisians won the first 6 to 1 and then took the second nearly as easily from the world champions, 2 to 1.

The Phillies stopped the Boston Braves 7 to 2 without a great deal of effort. Second Baseman Friberg went to bat four times and obtained a quartet of singles.

The Philadelphia Athletics ran Herb Pennock off the mound to win from the New York Yankees, 8 to 5. Pennock yielded 10 hits before he was taken out in the third.

Coveleskie of the Washington Senators blanked the Red Sox 2 to 0, holding the latter to five ineffective hits. It took the Cleveland Indians 12 innings before they got the St. Louis Browns' number, 6 to 5.

The Chicago White Sox ran away with the first stanza of a doubleheader with the Detroit Tigers 19 to 2 and then lost the second 7 to 6. The Sox made 23 hits in the first game and 15 in the second, but the Tigers' defense tightened up in the curtain closer.

Unable to fathom the curves sent over by Pipgras, star St. Paul pitcher, the association leading Brewers went down to defeat 8 to 0. Only two hits were registered by the Brewers in the nine innings Pipgras worked and during which time he struck out 14 men, setting an association record for the season.

The Colonels downed the Senators and gained a full game on the Brewers in the pennant race. The Colonels were outbatted but managed to bunch their safeties in two innings and won 6 to 5.

Indianapolis also kept in the running for the association championship by handing the Hens a 4 to 2 trimming in a pitchers' duel between Speece and McNamara.

Hitting two pitchers for a total of 16 hits, the Kansas City Blues took the first game of the series from the Millers 9 to 3.

GREGORY PARK IN NEW DRESS

Band Stand, Playground Equipment, Pergolas, Etc., Being Repainted

CARETAKER IS EFFICIENT

Flower Beds Are Delight to Tourists And Local Visitors

The band stand, playground equipment, pergolas, and back stops of the tennis courts are being repainted in green and white and will increase the already neat and beautiful appearance of Gregory Park.

The park has been kept in wonderful condition this summer and much of this is due to the efforts of Mr. Frederickson, the caretaker. The flower beds which consist of gladioli, calandulas, castor beans, astors, petunias, zerbennas, chasta daisies and other varieties, have flourished remarkably well and have been the cause of much comment by tourists and local people. Tourists especially have commented on the beauty of the park and report that in no other city of the size of Brainerd have they one that can compare with it.

The cement work in the pool has been cleaned out several times, thereby causing the water to appear clear and sparkling at all times. The fountain has been working all season and forms an attractive setting for the center of the park.

The American Legion is considering a sketch of a memorial arch which has been designed by W. J. Giles a local architect and if erected will probably be built at the Sixth street entrance. The drawing is on display in Attorney Basil T. Heath's office.

A rest room is also being contemplated for next year as there have been numerous demands for one during the past season and would prove convenient for tourists and people that live at either end of the city.

The tennis courts that have been installed have proven very popular and a waiting list is always ready for a "vacant court." Mrs. A. C. Weber, of the park board, has been instrumental in procuring the courts and credit is also due her for the shape in which they are being kept up.

It is hoped by the board that next year the city will see fit to pave the North and South streets of the park and which will improve still more Brainerd's central beauty spot.

Another section of the city is also causing much comment and that is the county court house grounds. The lawns about the building are cut regularly and form a beautiful even stretch of green. The flowers in front are now blossoming in their full glory and give a pleasing first impression to the tourist who enters the city.

Irish Situation

It was a wordy fight, and the little man with what looked like two pounds of sausage under his arm gave his parting shot. "The sooner," he said, emphatically, "that I never see your face again the better it will be for both of us when we meet."

Harsh Measures

Houses and structures that were condemned and either ordered demolished, together with their owners or agents, are herewith listed.—Tennessee paper.

GREGORY PARK IN NEW DRESS

Band Stand, Playground Equipment, Pergolas, Etc., Being Repainted

CARETAKER IS EFFICIENT

Flower Beds Are Delight to Tourists
And Local Visitors

The band stand, playground equipment, pergolas, and back stops of the tennis courts are being repainted in green and white and will increase the already neat and beautiful appearance of Gregory Park.

The park has been kept in wonderful condition this summer and much of this is due to the efforts of
Mr. Frederickson, the caretaker.
The flower beds which consist of gladioli, calandulas, castor beans, astors, petunias, zerbeneas, chasta daisies and other varieties, have flourished remarkably well and have been the cause of much comment by tourists and local people. Tourists especially have commented on the beauty of the park and report that in no other city of the size of Brainerd have they one that can compare with it.

The cement work in the pool has been cleaned out several times, thereby causing the water to appear clear and sparkling at all times. The fountain has been working all season and forms an attractive setting for the center of the park.

The American Legion is considering a sketch of a memorial arch which has been designed by W. J.
Giles a local architect and if erected will probably be built at the Sixth street entrance. The drawing is on display in Attorney Basil T. Heath's office.

A rest room is also being contemplated for next year as there have been numerous demands for one during the past season and would prove convenient for tourists and people that live at either end of the city.

The tennis courts that have been installed have proven very popular and a waiting list is always ready for a "vacant court." Mrs. A. C.
Weber, of the park board, has been instrumental in procuring the courts and credit is also due her for the shape in which they are being kept up.

It is hoped by the board that next year the city will see fit to pave the North and South streets of the park and which will improve still more Brainerd's central beauty spot.

Another section of the city is also causing much comment and that is the county court house grounds. The lawns about the building are cut regularly and form a beautiful even stretch of green. The flowers in front are now blossoming in their full glory and give a pleasing first impression to the tourist who enters the city.

Irish Situation

It was a wordy fight, and the little man with what looked like two pounds of sausage under his arm gave his parting shot. "The sooner," he said, emphatically, "that I never see your face again the better it will be for both of us when we meet."

Harsh Measures

Houses and structures that were condemned and either ordered demolished, together with their owners or agents, are herewith listed.—Tennes-

JOE BUSH AS OF OLD HYPNOTIZES N. Y. GIANTS, 4-0

PUTS BALL ACROSS WITH OLD
TIME RIFLE SHOT DE-LIVERY

FAST BALL AND FORK BALL
WERE BREAKING
GOOD

C. W. Post is a New York business man, great friend of our druggist and former mayor, H. P. Dunn. They meet on common ground, for both are admirers of Joe Bush.

Some time ago when Bush was released from the Washington Senators, Post thought it was the end of Joe Bullet and he came near shedding tears. Today he sends Mr. Dunn a report of the game and mentions: "Who told you the 'old fellow' was all in? I hope he doesn't pitch against the Yanks in the world's series in the championship shape he was in August 27."

(From New York Herald Tribune) By W. B. HANNA

Pittsburgh, Aug. 27. — Virgil Barnes held the Pirates to a no-run output for six innings today, but Joe Bush blanked the Giants for nine. The damage done by the champions in the seventh inning, from five hits and one error was irreparable, with Bush's fast ball and fork ball folding up the New Yorkers. The Pirates won a shut-out game. The score was 4 to 0, the Pittsburghers making all their runs in the seventh and the Giants having but four scattered hits to sweep through to safety off the unbeatable pitching of Joe, the bullet.

In world's series Bush has always been a hard horse for the Giants to curvy, though they have beaten him. To all intents and purposes he was Bullet Joe as much this afternoon as he ever was. Ott Kelly, Terry and Florence made the New York hits, one of which, a three-bagger by Florence, went far. The others were grounders through the infield. A lofty leap by Rhyme cut off a hit and allowed Pittsburgh to clear the bases with a double play; and this was a break which snuffed out a budding rally and which meant a great deal in support of such pitching as Bush's.

There were five hits off Barnes in the first six innings, all scattered, and there had been a game of skillful pitching and keen and nimble fielding. The Pirates' rally in the seventh was festooned with several of those hot skidding ground balls through the middle of the diamond, the same as yesterday, and by Bush's third hit and a clinching two-bagger by Waner—the ex-Seal who tagged our pitchers for six safe drives yesterday. Terry made a bad throw to the plate during the ruction, but it cut no vital figure.

Cluster of Hits Do Damage

The fielding was capital and the Giants outgassed the Pirates every time in the matter of calling for pitchouts and smearing the would-be stealer at second. But they could not withstand those ripping, twisting, ramming hits which came in a cluster in the seventh.

The boys work hard and infielders defend valiantly, but they have been thoroughly drubbed on this trip, and oftentimes a team thus battered is mentally licked at the outset; yet our boys were no drooping lot today. Bush had a man out or men out in every inning but the one when a hit was made. Ott led off with a single in the sixth, and Lindstrom smacked a liner on a hit and run play. Rhyme hurried back, jumped and caught the ball and fell on his back. He arose with plenty of time to double Ott. It was neck or nothing with that lad. A hit and run is a hit and run with him, and he had turned second. Rhyme's throw to Rawlings doubled him as he was wending his way back. It was not necessary to throw the ball to first.

There was one other chance for a New York run. Florence tripped to left in the eighth with one out. Muesel batted for Barnes and struck out. And Ott fled to Cuyler, who made no hits but assimilated numerous flies.

Barnhart Starts Attack

The Pirates until the seventh were quite as helpless. Barnhart singled to right as the first act of aggression of the home seventh. He was forced by Grantham, who sent a vicious bouncer to Barnes. Rawlings jumped just as vicious a one to Barnes, and the ball took a tangent to Jackson. Rawlings beat the throw to first and Grantham reached third. Terry swept up a grounder from Smitty and threw low to the plate to catch Grantham. Grantham had the throw beaten anyway.

The versatile Bush, a canny hitter, singled to right and sent home Rawlings, and Waner doubled through Tyson and scored Brickell and Bush. Brickell was running for Smith, who, on tour, is somewhat lumbering. Bush slid home for his, and his back ploughed the gully in the base path to say nothing of a valley in the back. Waner started pointed for third on the Ott-Jackson relay to the play to forestall Bush, who changed his mind when he saw Florence with the ball and was thrown out in a stirring play in which the ball described this tangled itinerary: Ott to Jackson to Florence to Kelly. At the bat our boys were shorn and shy, but in the field they had their kaleidoscopic moments.

M'GRAW HAS HAD STAR SHORTSTOPS

One Reason Given for Winning So Many Pennants.

It might be putting it a bit too strong to say that the New York Giants have won 10 pennants in 25 years for one reason alone—but it is a copper-riveted clench that part of the amazing managerial success of John McGraw is due to the fact that for 23 years he hasn't once allowed himself to be caught without a star shortstop.

Shortstop is the most important position in the infield and one of the hardest of all positions on the ball field to fill. Over a period of years, the range of territory between second base and third probably gives the average manager more trouble than any other two positions.

Wilbert Robinson ran around in circles for 10 years trying to satisfactorily plug a gaping hole in the Brooklyn infield. Until he landed Maranville, the Robins, under your Uncle Wilbert's management, never were strong at that position.

Other clubs have been in the same position, and when a brilliant infielder who knows his job, and can get a base hit once in a while, comes up to the big leagues he has a job for the rest of his baseball life.

How McGraw does it nobody knows, but he has never been caught in this particular trap since Bad Bill Dahlen joined the Giants back in 1904.

Dahlen lasted four years under McGraw and was an important cog in a pair of New York pennant winners. Al Bridwell, a corking ball player and a timely hitter, replaced Dahlen and filled the bill for a couple of seasons. Before Bridwell faded out, McGraw had picked up Arthur Fletcher, the present manager of the Phillies. Fletcher played great ball as a regular for an even decade. He began to slip, and, before his slipping was obvious to the world at large, McGraw had bundled him off to Philadelphia along with a bundle of cash, for Dave Bancroft.

Beauty Bancroft, one of the greatest shortstops of all time, was at the peak of his career and easily the greatest shortstop in the business when McGraw traded him to the Boston Braves. The collective mouth of the populace popped open and stayed open until the boys got a peek at Travis Jackson, then just nineteen years old.

Bancroft was gone, but the Giants didn't lose a stride. Jackson stepped in like a veteran, fielded like a fiend, and drove in a flock of runs.

Jackson, the regular Giant shortstop now, is supposed to be one of the main cogs in the Giant machine. He's almost as dashing and even more reliable than Bancroft. He's what the athletes of other teams call a winning ball player, which means if you stop him you've got a fair chance of stopping the entire team.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

New York, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Stocks gave the most impressive demonstration of buoyancy in the session since the rediscunt change. Money eased off to 4½ per cent after maintaining a five per cent level for nearly a week due to heavy requirements over the end of the month. This easement imparted additional care to corporation operations and transactions. Bond issues were recorded in such magnitude that no doubt was left as to the power of the interests conducting the accumulation.

Seasoned rails like New York Central, Southern Railway, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific and Pere Marquette continued to march steadily upward while the leading industrials fell in line. New highs in the rally were reached by United States Steel, General Motors, DuPont, American Smelting and Allied Chemical. The market closed irregular.

LIEUT. BETTIS DIES FROM HIS INJURIES

SPEED CHAMPION OF ARMY AIR
SERVICE SUCCEMBED
TODAY

SUFFERED RELAPSE, NERVE
SHEATHS HOPELESSLY
INFLAMED

Washington, Sept. 1. — (UP) — Lieutenant Cyrus Bettis, one of the speed champions of the army air service, died at Walter Reed hospital today from injuries he received when his plane crashed against the side of a mountain near Bellefonte, Pa., last week.

Lieut. Bettis, flying with two companions, became lost in a fog and crashed. His companions did not know of the accident and made their home port.

When Bettis failed to appear, a search was started and after 12 hours the flyer was found in a Bellefonte hospital. He had been found by two boys. An army air ambulance transported him from Bellefonte to Washington and he was thought to be recovering. Late yesterday, however, he suffered a relapse as result of inflammation of the nerve sheaths.

Washington, Sept. 1. — (UP) — Lieutenant Cyrus Bettis, injured army aviator, was still unconscious this morning following an unexpected relapse late yesterday, and army physicians at Walter Reed hospital admitted there was little hope of saving his life.

The flyer, who was injured a week ago when his plane crashed into Jack's Mountain, near Bellefonte, Pa., in a fog, relapsed into unconsciousness yesterday, after he was thought to be well out of danger. The last official announcement of his condition last night said it was critical, and physicians at the hospital this morning reported he was slightly worse.

His mother, at Port Huron, Mich., has been notified and is expected to come to Washington in a week.

Plumber Thought He Needed New Pipes

"My stomach and intestines were always full of gas and I often had severe colic attacks. The pain and soreness caused me to think I needed a new set of pipes. Since taking MAYR'S all this has disappeared and my only trouble now is to make enough dough to buy all the food I'd like to eat." JOE BUSH AS OF OLD HYPNOTIZES N. Y. GIANTS, 4-0

PUTS BALL ACROSS WITH OLD
TIME RIFLE SHOT DE-LIVERY

FAST BALL AND FORK BALL
WERE BREAKING
GOOD

C. W. Post is a New York business man, great friend of our druggist and former mayor, H. P. Dunn. They meet on common ground, for both are admirers of Joe Bullet Bush.

Some time ago when Bush was released from the Washington Senators, Post thought it was the end of Joe Bullet and he came near shedding tears. Today he sends Mr. Dunn a report of the game and mentions: "Who told you the 'old fellow' was all in? I hope he doesn't pitch against the Yanks in the world's series in the championship shape he was in August 27."

(From New York Herald Tribune)
By W. B. HANNA

Pittsburgh, Aug. 27.—Virgil Barnes held the Pirates to a no-run output for six innings today, but Joe Bush blanked the Giants for nine. The damage done by the champions in the seventh inning, from five hits and one error was irreparable, with Bush's fast ball and fork ball folding up the New Yorkers. The Pirates won a shut-out game. The score was 4 to 0, the Pittsburghers making all their runs in the seventh and the Giants having but four scattered hits to sweep through to safety off the unbeatable pitching of Joe, the bullet.

In world's series Bush has always been a hard horse for the Giants to curvy, though they have beaten him. To all intents and purposes he was Bullet Joe as much this afternoon as he ever was. Ott Kelly, Terry and Florence made the New York hits, one of which, a three-bagger by Florence, went far. The others were grounders through the infield. A lofty leap by Rhyme cut off a hit and allowed Pittsburgh to clear the bases with a double play; and this was a break which snuffed out a budding rally and which meant a great deal in support of such pitching as Bush's.

There were five hits off Barnes in the first six innings, all scattered, and there had been a game of skillful pitching and keen and nimble fielding. The Pirates' rally in the seventh was foisted upon with several of those hot skidding ground balls through the middle of the diamond, the same as yesterday, and by Bush's third hit and a clinching two-bagger by Waner—the ex-Seal who tagged our pitchers for six safe drives yesterday. Terry made a bad throw to the plate during the ruction, but it cut no vital figure.

Cluster of Hits Do Damage

The fielding was capital and the Giants outgassed the Pirates every time in the matter of calling for pitchouts and smearing the would-be stealer at second. But they could not withstand those ripping, twisting, ramming hits which came in a cluster in the seventh.

The boys work hard and infielders defend valiantly, but they have been thoroughly drubbed on this trip, and oftentimes a team thus battered is mentally licked at the outset; yet our boys were no drooping lot today. Bush had a man out or men out in every inning but the one when a hit was made. Ott led off with a single in the sixth, and Lindstrom smacked a liner on a hit and run play. Rhyme hurried back, jumped and caught the ball and fell on his back. He arose with plenty of time to double Ott. It was neck or nothing with that lad. A hit and run is a hit and run with him, and he had turned second. Rhyme's throw to Rawlings doubled him as he was winding his way back. It was not necessary to throw the ball to first.

There was one other chance for a New York run. Florence tripled to left in the eighth with one out. Muesel batted for Barnes and struck out. And Ott fled to Cuyler, who made no hits but assimilated numerous flies.

Barnhart Starts Attack

The Pirates until the seventh were quite as helpless. Barnhart singled to right as the first act of aggression of the home seventh. He was forced by Grantham, who sent a vicious bouncer to Barnes. Rawlings jumped just as vicious a one to Barnes, and the ball took a tangent to Jackson. Rawlings beat the throw to first and Grantham reached third. Terry swept up a grounder from Smitty and threw low to the plate to catch Grantham. Grantham had the throw beaten anyway.

The versatile Bush, a canny hitter, singled to right and sent home Rawlings, and Waner doubled through Tyson and scored Brickell and Bush. Brickell was running for Smith, who, on tour, is somewhat lumbering. Bush slid home for his, and his back ploughed the gully in the base path to say nothing of a valley in the back. Waner started pointed for third on the Ott-Jackson relay to the play to forestall Bush, who changed his mind when he saw Florence with the ball and was thrown out in a stirring play in which the ball described this tangled itinerary: Ott to Jackson to Florence to Kelly. At the bat our boys were shorn and shy, but in the field they had their kaleidoscopic moments.

M'GRAW HAS HAD STAR SHORTSTOPS

One Reason Given for Winning So Many Pennants.

It might be putting it a bit too strong to say that the New York Giants have won 10 pennants in 25 years for one reason alone—but it is a copper-riveted clench that part of the amazing managerial success of John McGraw is due to the fact that for 23 years he hasn't once allowed himself to be caught without a star shortstop. Shortstop is the most important position in the infield and one of the hardest of all positions on the ball field to fill. Over a period of years, the range of territory between second base and third probably gives the average manager more trouble than any other two positions.

Wilbert Robinson ran around in circles for 10 years trying to satisfactorily plug a gaping hole in the Brooklyn infield. Until he landed Maranville, the Robins, under our Uncle Wilbert's management, never were strong at that position.

Other clubs have been in the same position, and when a brilliant infielder who knows his job, and can get a base hit once in a while, comes up to the big leagues he has a job for the rest of his baseball life.

How McGraw does it nobody knows, but he has never been caught in this particular trap since Bad Bill Dahlen joined the Giants back in 1904.

Dahlen lasted four years under McGraw and was an important cog in a pair of New York pennant winners. Al Bridwell, a corking ball player and a timely hitter, replaced Dahlen and filled the bill for a couple of seasons.

Before Bridwell faded out, McGraw had picked up Arthur Fletcher, the present manager of the Phillies. Fletcher played great ball as a regular for an even decade. He began to slip, and, before his slipping was obvious to the world at large, McGraw had bundled him off to Philadelphia along with a bundle of cash, for Dave Bancroft.

Beauty Bancroft, one of the greatest shortstops of all time, was at the peak of his career and easily the greatest shortstop in the business when McGraw traded him to the Boston Braves. The collective mouth of the populace popped open and stayed open until the boys got a peek at Travis Jackson, then just nineteen years old.

Bancroft was gone, but the Giants didn't lose a stride. Jackson stepped in like a veteran, fielded like a fiend, and drove in a flock of runs.

Jackson, the regular Giant shortstop now, is supposed to be one of the main cogs in the Giant machine. He's almost as dashing and even more reliable than Bancroft. He's what the athletes of other teams call a winning ball player, which means if you stop him you've got a fair chance of stopping the entire team.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET

New York, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Stocks gave the most impressive demonstration of buoyancy in the session since the rediscout change. Money eased off to 4½ per cent after maintaining a five per cent level for nearly a week due to heavy requirements over the end of the month. This easement imparted additional care to corporation operations and transactions. Bond issues were recorded in such magnitude that no doubt was left as to the power of the interests conducting the accumulation.

Seasoned rails like New York Central, Southern Railway, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific and Pere Marquette continued to march steadily upward while the leading industrials fell in line. New highs in the rally were reached by United States Steel, General Motors, DuPont, American Smelting and Allied Chemical. The market closed irregular.

LIEUT. BETTIS DIES FROM HIS INJURIES

SPEED CHAMPION OF ARMY AIR
SERVICE SUCCEMBED
TODAY

SUFFERED RELAPSE, NERVE
SHEATHS HOPELESSLY
INFLAMED

Washington, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Lieutenant Cyrus Bettis, one of the speed champions of the army air service, died at Walter Reed hospital today from injuries he received when his plane crashed against the side of a mountain near Bellefonte, Pa., last week.

Lieut. Bettis, flying with two companions, became lost in a fog and crashed. His companions did not know of the accident and made their home port.

When Bettis failed to appear, a search was started and after 12 hours the flyer was found in a Bellefonte hospital. He had been found by two boys. An army air ambulance transported him from Bellefonte to Washington and he was thought to be recovering. Late yesterday, however, he suffered a relapse as result of inflammation of the nerve sheaths.

Washington, Sept. 1.—(UP)—Lieutenant Cyrus Bettis, injured army aviator, was still unconscious this morning following an unexpected relapse late yesterday, and army physicians at Walter Reed hospital admitted there was little hope of saving his life.

The flyer, who was injured a week ago when his plane crashed into Jack's Mountain, near Bellefonte, Pa., in a fog, relapsed into unconsciousness yesterday, after he was thought to be well out of danger. The last official announcement of his condition last night said it was critical, and physicians at the hospital this morning reported he was slightly worse.

His mother, at Port Huron, Mich., has been notified and is expected to come to Washington at once.
